Unions' Chiefs Quit Pay Panel

WASHINGTON (UPI) — George Meany and two other top labor union leaders quit today as members of the federal Pay Board in protest of President Nixon's economic control program.

Meany, 77-year-old president of the AFL-CIO, was joined in the walkout by Floyd Smith, president of the International Association of Machinists, and I. W. Abel, president of the United Steelworkers Union.

The other two labor members of the 15-member board, United Auto Workers President Leonard Woodcock and Teamster President Frank Fitzsimmons whose unions are not affiliated with the AFL-CIO, were sympathetic but did not immediately follow suit.

Meany, Smith and Abel charged that the board was a tool of the administration and of big business.

In a bitter statement, Meany said the working man has "no hope for fairness, equity or justice in the Pay Board."

The panel, Meany said, "represents political and business interests ... we will not be a part of the window-dressing for this system of unfair and inequitable government control of wages for the benefit of business profits."

Today's action was taken during a conference called by Meany to decide whether labor leaders would continue to cooperate with the government wage program.

Labor leaders have been particularly angered by a Pay Board ruling—voted by its business and public members— to cut back a wage settlement for West Coast dockers by about one-fourth.

The unusual session of the 35-member Executive Council of the AFL-CIO broke up shortly after noon. Although their unions are not part of the AFL-CIO, Woodcock and Fitzsimmons were invited to attend, but didn't although a UAW representative was on hand.

Meany said the executive

Marijuana Penalties Cut Urged

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The National Commission on Marijuana and Drug Abuse today recommended removal of federal and state restrictions against the personal possession and private use of marijuana, but said pot is not harmless and its use should be discouraged.

"Throughout the commission's deliberations there was a recurring awareness of the possibility that marijuana use may be a fad which, if not institutionalized, will recede substantially in time," the 13-member panel said in the first of two scheduled reports to President Nixon and Congress. It will report next year on drug abuse in general.

The report, "Marijuana: A Signal of Misunderstanding," recommends a policy of confinement of marijuana to the home and official discouragement of its use.

It also said intermittent or experimental use of marijuana carried only a minimal risk to public health and in general the whole controversy has ballooned out of proportion.

The panel, chaired by Raymond P. Shafer, the former governor of Pennsylvania, appeared to strike a middle path between those who want complete legalization of marijuana, and those, such as the President, who categorically oppose its legalization.

At the White House, Deputy Press Secretary Gerald A. Warren said today that Nixon "still opposes the legalization of marijuana." Warren did not indicate how the President felt about the commission's recommendations.

"The states have primary responsibility for enforcing the existing proscriptions against possession for personal use. Their present efforts are designed mainly to keep marijuana use contained and in private.

Dredging Plan Foes Alarmed By Outlay

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

HAYWARD — Tough new dredging regulations proposed for San Francisco Bay would skyrocket costs up to 1,000 per cent and trigger a recession in Northern California, water pollution officials were warned yesterday.

Powerful opposition to the regulations came from industry, maritime interests and the Army Corps of Engineers, all of them arguing for at least a year's delay to give more time to study the need for the regulations.

Small craft harbors depending on continued dredging for access to deep water, as do virtually all harbors in Marin and Southern Sonoma, could be wiped out by increased costs under the regulations, according to testimony before the Regional Water Quality Control Board.

Final adoption of the regulations is set for 10 a.m. next Tuesday when the board meets here again in the Alameda County Public Works Building, 399 Elmhurst Street.

The regulations were drafted by the board's staff to meet new federal standards on dumping dredged mud that is polluted. They would bar dumping drdged mud anywhere in the bay if found contaminated with heavy metals or toxic chemicals.

Such polluted spoils would have to be dumped either on land or 30 miles outside the Golden Gate in depths greater than 100 fathoms. Cleaner spoils could be dumped at one of five disposal sites in the bay.

The impact of this restriction already has been felt in San

Fair Skies Will Return

A light-to-moderate rainfall dampened Marin and Southern Sonoma last night and today for the first time in nearly two weeks, but the National Weather Service said fair skies were to return tonight.

The apparently short-lived shower left from .05 of an inch of rain in Nicasio to .63 of an inch in Woodacre for a 24-hour period ending at 8 a.m. today. San Rafael had .40 of an inch for a 24-hour period to noon.

A 'WHITEWASH'

Ex-Juror Hits Arrests Probe

By PAT ANGLE

The Marin County Grand Jury's report of an arrest quota system in the Sausalito Police Department was branded "total whitewash" yesterday by a state official, a former jury member and five witnesses who testified in the probe.

"If this is the report the jury intends to release, I'm appalled it would waste its time and the resources of Marin County in producing it," said Gerald Hawes, a member of the police investigating committee until Oct. 1 when he resigned from the jury in protest of the group's indictment procedures.

State Board of Equalization member William M. Bennett, of Kent Woodlands, whose arrest for drunken driving and subsequent trial triggered the inquiry into the quota system, accused the jury of "having no regard for justice in its apparent determination to protect the city administration of Sausalito." Bennett also hinted he may call for a complete investigation of the department by a group other than the jury "to get some justice done for myself and the people who live in and visit this county."

Hawes, Bennett and the witnesses, who asked to remain anonymous, for fear of reprisal, all said they had heard or given testimony about far graver matters than the quota system to which the jury committee limited its report.

By the time he left the investigating committee, Hawes said he had already heard testimony of police practices which were "illegal and far more serious than the quota system."

"By August we were certainly in a position to produce the kind of limited report produced by the committee, said Hawes, adding he "simply cannot understand what occurred during the eight months since the probe began last July.

Among other things, Hawes said, the jury had been told that Sausalito police falsified records, made selective arrests of street people on violations of laws and did not enforce against other citizens and that officers were ordered to stake out bars in an effort to increase drunken driving arrests.

There was also evidence, according to Hawes, that some officers were allowed to certify that off-duty injuries had occurred on the job to collect state Compensation Insurance and that policemen were docked overtime pay for violating department rules. ("A man appearing for work five minutes late could, for example lose several hours of overtime).

The former juror said that by

Muskie Revives Drive In Illinois Primary

CHICAGO (UPI)—Sen. Edmund S. Muskie revived his faltering Democratic presidential campaign in Tuesday's Illinois primary, taking more than 60 per cent of the vote over Eugene J. McCarthy. Muskie headed for the next big showdown in Wisconsin saying, "this has the taste of a clearcut victory."

But there was little or no taste of victory for Mayor Richard J. Daley of Chicago, the Democratic Party Kingmaker.

His candidate for the pivotal post of Cook County state's attorney was soundly whipped by the man Daley had dumped as an endorsed candidate, incumbent Edward V. Hanrahan. And his choice for the gubernatorial nomination, Lt. Gov. Paul Simon, was trailing maverick anti-Daleyite Daniel Walker.

A massive crossover of Republican voters to the Democratic primary appeared to be the key factor in threatening Daley with a defeat which could grievously affect his stature as the Democrat who calls the shots in Illinois and speaks loudly in the councils of the national party.

The rundown of the voting in Illinois:

With 10,195 of the state's 10,858 precincts counted, Muskie led McCarthy in the nonbinding preferential balloting with 709,022 votes or 63 per cent to 411,937 votes and 37 per cent.

With 8,010 precincts reporting, returns indicated Muskie

Federal Report Carries Rigid Marin EOC Clauses

A highly-critical federal report on administration of the Marin County Economic Opportunity Council was released late yesterday, recommending the local poverty agency be refunded for no more than a six-month trial period.

The document, which spreads blame for the EOC's current troubles between an incompetent staff and ineffective governing board, will be presented to board members today at 8 p.m. during a special meeting at 918 C Street, San Rafael.

In a cover letter signed by Thomas H. Mercer, regional director of the Office of Economic Opportunity, tha federal government says it intends to grant the agency $73,500 for a six-month period, beginning April 1.

That figure was reached, according to Mercer, by deducting nearly $63,000 in misused funds from the agency's annual funding request which was then divided in half for the six-month period.

For the money to keep flowing, Mercer added, 10 special conditions must be met by the local agency:

1. Submission to Mercer's office of a revised work program and budget showing how the

SEWER FARM

Also Free Grazing For Sheep

Ever have a yen to raise a couple of sheep?

You know, fatten up that half-empty freezer with a couple of tender spring lambs. Or maybe just as a hobby, kind of like a backyard garden.

If what's holding you back is the lack of a few acres to graze the fuzzy creatures or the lack of time to ward off those mutton-loving dogs, have heart — a Kentfield man has found the answer.

Arthur L. Poganski of 19 Manor Road has simply combined his job with his hobby and the Ross Valley Sanitary District, for whom he works, doesn't seem to mind.

In fact, the district is kind of a partner in the deal. In return for giving Poganski free grazing rights on land near its Greenbrae treatment plant the district is assured of having that troublesome pasture grass kept at a manageable level.

Poganski's role of gentleman farmer came to light yesterday when the county board of supervisors awarded him $250 as compensation for 10 of his sheep killed by dogs.

Compensation for animals killed by dogs is permitted under a state law which says part of the county's dog license revenue must be used for such purposes.

Poganski's sheep were killed last September and December while grazing on the district's land.

According to documents given the county, the dogs responsible for the slaughter were killed in turn by a couple of keen-eyed sharpshooters who work under Poganski at the treatment plant.

According to Noah, his plant superintendent has been running sheep on the district's property "off and on for some time."

He said the question of a lease "just never came up" during sanitary district board meetings but he doubted whether others interested in using district land could.

"I just don't know what to tell you," Noah said.

West Marin Low Density Zone Voted

3-2 Board Action Spurs Developer Suit Threats

By ERICK M. INGRAM

On a 3-2 vote, the Marin County Board of Supervisors yesterday approved controversial, low-density rezoning for some 60,000 acres of scenic West Marin ranchland. (Other supervisors stories, pages 8, 9.)

The board's action, which followed nearly two and a half hours of discussion, was applauded by environmentalists as a major victory over land developers and speculators.

It brought assurances, meanwhile, from developers and property owners that the matter would be appealed through the courts as an unfair confiscation of property owners' rights.

The rezoning was the first of five such actions expected to reclassify lands within the county's agricultural preserve to densities compatible with the agricultural industry.

It was approved last month by the county planning commission, which will begin hearings next week on the second area to be rezoned within the county's 210,000-acre preserve.

About 150 persons — most seeming in support of the rezoning — attended yesterday's session forcing the removal of the partition which usually separates the supervisors and planning commission chambers.

Voting for the rezoning were Supervisors Arnold M. Baptiste, Michael Wornum and Peter R. Arrigoni Jr. who agreed the action was necessary to protect the future of agriculture in Marin.

Without the restrictive zoning, which changes the minimum lot size from two acres per homesite to 60 acres per homesite in most of the northern section of the county, the agricultural industry would be left at the mercy of developers, Baptiste argued.

Supervisor John F. McInnis, who urged unsuccessfully that the matter be continued for further study, eventually voted against it saying he was not sure agriculture has a future in Marin.

He was backed by Supervisor Louis H. Bar, who drew on developers' arguements that land values would be too drastically reduced by the action.

The rezoning was recommended by the county's planning department to fulfill state law governing agricultural preserves.

The law — the Williamson Act — states that lands within an agricultural preserve area must be zoned in a manner compatible with agricultural use. Other factors, such as open space, also may be considered.

Thus, County Planning Director Werner von Gundell told the board yesterday, 60-acre zoning appears to be the most compatible for Marin's dairying and cattle raising operations.

In four scattered areas, he continued. the zoning is set for 20 and 40 acres per homesite because that designation had been previously approved.

Among those speaking in support of the rezoning was San Rafael Attorney Gary T. Giacomini, a candidate for the board and a native of West Marin.

Giacomini, who was the only Fourth District candidate to attent yesterday's session, said he believed the rezoning to be in the best interest of Marin as a whole. "I believe, also, and I hope it's not wishful thinking, that this will save dairying," he said, explaining that it will

School Tax Hikes Beaten Soundly In Petaluma Vote

Complete but unofficial vote figures show the elementary district's 88 cent rate increase lost with 3,056 no votes and 1,799 in support. The high school district increase of 68 cents lost by a margin of 5,769 to 3,327.

Voter turnout was 45.1 per cent in the high school district and 47 per cent in the elementary district.

Schools Supt. Lesly H. Meyer said he and the board of education were disappointed with the election results and would begin planning cutbacks in the 1972-73 budget. He said the elementary district would probably feel the effects most strongly since it has less reserve funds available than the high school district.

Meyer said that only regular classroom teachers and state supported special education-teachers would be retained in the elementary district. He said music teachers and district-supported reading, mathematics and other special education teachers would be cut. He said he believed most of the teachers could be transferred to the junior high school level where a 500-student increase is expected next year.

Meyer said the board of education will consider calling another tax rate increase election, possibly for July, at its meeting next Tuesday at 8 p.m.

Bomb Explodes Near Plush Belfast Hotel

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI)—A bomb exploded today in a stolen truck parked between the luxury Europa Hotel and Belfast's main railway station, wrecking the rear of the hotel and heavily damaging the station where two empty trains were destroyed.

A British army spokesman said at least 70 persons were injured in the 3 p.m. explosion in a parking lot behind the 12-story, one-year-old hotel, but said there were many shops and offices in the area and the toll could be higher.

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Hughes Sells

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — For the first time since he began building his Nevada empire six years ago, Howard Hughes has sold a major chunk of his holdings there.

Bill Murphy confirmed Tuesday that he and another Los Angeles auto dealer, Fletcher Jones, had purchased from Hughes the 518-acre Krupp Ranch outside Las Vegas, and a house in Las Vegas on a five-acre tract.

Murphy declined to reveal the purchase price, but the Los Angeles Times reported it was $1.5 million.

Welfare Pay Up

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Despite a report last month that the size of the nation's welfare rolls might start declining, the government said today the relief rolls increased last November for the fourth consecutive month.

Welfare payments to the needy also increased in November for the fifth straight month, said the Health, Education and Welfare Department. John D. Twiname, administrator of HEW's Social and Rehabilitation Service, said 14.6 million needy persons received $871.8 million in cash payments last November, the latest month for which figures were available.

Exec Kidnaped

BUENOS AIRES (UPI) — Marxist terrorists kidnaped Fiat's general manager for Argentina yesterday and declared in a communique that he would be tried by "popular justice" for repression of workers and for monopolistic practices.

A commando team of six men and a woman using two automobiles intercepted the chauffeur-driven limousine of Oberdan Sallustro, 56, a Paraguayan, as he left his suburban home.

They forced his car to the curb, shot chauffeur Jose Puente in the shoulder when he attempted to resist, intimidated an ineffectual bodyguard, and hauled Sallustro away after a pistol whipping. One of the abductors wore a brown federal district police uniform with sergeant's stripes, a witness said.

Oil Spill

HENRIEVILLE, Utah (UPI) — Crews labored today to halt a 10,000-gallon crude oil spill before it entered the Colorado River near the head of its twisting, scenic route through the Grand Canyon.

The workers erected board dams and spread bales of straw yesterday in efforts to stem the oil flow, which spilled from a semi-trailer tanker truck that was wrecked near the head of the Paria River.

A spokesman for Hatchco, the firm that was shipping the crude petroleum from oil wells near Escalante to Salt Lake City, said the truck accident Saturday spilled between 7,500 and 10,000 gallons of oil.

TV And Violence

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Surgeon General Jesse L. Steinfeld said yesterday scientists have arrived at an "overwhelming consensus" that televised violence has an adverse effect on certain members of society.

Steinfeld called in an appearance before a Senate subcommittee for immediate action to stem violence on television.

He said he wanted to correct a "public misunderstanding" of the Surgeon General's Scientific Advisory Committee Report on Television and Social Behavior.

The report, Steinfeld said, was so carefully worded that some industry and government officials have interpreted it as finding no cause-and-effect relationship between violence and antisocial behavior.

Chicken's In

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Unlike a major eastern grocery chain which is advising consumers to switch from red meat to chicken and other foods if they want to bring beef prices down, the government is not directly suggesting any switches.

But in an announcement which makes no mention of beef prices, the Agriculture Department has put broiler-fryer chickens at the head of its list of "best-buy" foods for May.

Officials said chickens will be the prime feature item for May in their regular "plentiful foods" program. This is a long-standing publicity campaign designed to promote foods which are in ample supply at "attractive" retail prices.

Tax Reform Drive

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Contending that the graduated income tax has eroded to the point that the average $50,000-a-year executive pays taxes at the same rate as his $9,000-a-year secretary, a dozen Democratic senators Tuesday opened a new campaign for tax reform.

Led by Sen. Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis., they introduced in the Senate a bill to attack 21 tax "loopholes" and designed to increase the taxes of the rich by $16 billion.

They said that money could be passed along to low and middle-income families to relieve the burden of rising property taxes. President Nixon also wants to make possible the reduction of property taxes.

Reagan Will Keep His Hair Style

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) —Gov. Ronald Reagan says he "came out of the crewcut era" and does not intend to let his hair grow any longer.

The 61-year-old governor, who wears his hair considerably above his collar, told a group of students Tuesday, "You keep yours and I'll keep mine" when asked why he doesn't wear his hair longer.

Phnom Penh In Shock Over Red Bombardment

By KATE WEBB

PHNOM PENH (UPI)—The 22 crude, wooden coffins—each draped with a simple, white cloth—attracted little attention in the grimy square on the edge of the railroad tracks.

Today was official mourning day for the 102 persons killed in the Communist artillery attack on the capital Tuesday and most of the city's residents were too preoccupied with their own grief to notice the quiet Buddhist ceremony.

War came to Cambodia two years ago but it had never been brought home to the residents of Phnom Penh with the intensity of the Communist shelling that left more than 200 others wounded.

Many of the city's residents expressed anger. Frustrated soldiers literally tore apart the body of a dead Communist attacker. Most, however, were shocked.

Statistics showed Communist gunners lobbed 98 seven-foot-long 122mm rockets, plus uncounted smaller rounds, on the sleeping city. Some of the rounds hit the Defense Ministry, but several of the rockets plunged into a shantytown refugee camp, setting the temporary houses afire.

The airport and official radio station were other targets, but the artillerymen deliberately shelled treelined Jawaharlal Nehru Boulevard, a fahionable street fronting apartment houses and shops.

The gunners also hit the city's stadium—the pride of exiled Prince Norodom Sihanouk, who is now living in Peking.

Despite the shock of the attack—described as the worst artillery barrage aginst a major city in the Indochina war — other phases of operations returned to normal.

The airport was reopened. Radio Phnom Penh, where 25 persons were killed, was back on the air. President Lon Nol named a senior adviser, Son Ngoc Thanh, prime minister and foreign minister and appointed a 17-member cabinet. Students protesting governmental policies went back to their demonstrations.

At the railroad square, a band consisting of a man playing a reed pipe and three men somberly beating muffled drums played for the 22 victims.

DAZED — A nearly naked, dazed Cambodian civilian walks away from the burning ruins of his home in Phnom Penh following a Communist artillery attack. At least 102 persons were killed in the bombardment yesterday.

Fight Set To Revive Auto Repair Curbs

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Backers of legislation designed to lower car repair costs hoped today to revive a bill which Rep. John E. Moss, D-Calif., says has fallen victim to auto industry efforts "to milk the American public for every dollar they can get."

Attempts were under way to get the House Commerce Committee to reconsider the 20 to 18 vote by which it tentatively rejected the measure Tuesday on a motion to send it back to subcommittee.

At least four possible supporters of the bill were absent Tuesday.

Before voting to send the bill back to the subcommittee, the full committee voted 23 to 15 against Moss' attempt to amend it with Senate-passed language intended to reduce the cost of automobile repairs and insurance by at least $1 billion per year.

The bill returned to the subcommittee was a much weakened version of the Senate bill. It would have authorized the Department of Transportation (DOT) to provide dealer showrooms, within two years, with repair cost data from manufacturers so that buyers could compare the damageability of one car to another.

Under the bill passed by the Senate last year 89 to 4, DOT would be authorized to set standards aimed at producing crash resistant cars. A bumper that would protect against damage at 5 miles per hour would save motorists at least $1 billion per year, according to estimates made during hearings on the bill.

Britisher's Pocketbook To Be Fattened In May

Starting May 3 they also had the promise of a $2.60 a week pay raise from the taxman. The bonanza ends, however, at cigarettes, liquor, gasoline and dog food.

The good news for a country plagued for years by inflation and one of the highest tax bills in the Western world came in a budget speech to Parliament Tuesday by Chancellor of the Exchequer Anthony Barber.

In the biggest single tax bonanza ever announced by a British government, Barber put $3.12 billion tax handout in the pockets of his fellow countrymen.

Its purpose, he said, was to pull the economy out of the doldrums, help it prepare for the challenge of joining the Common Market on Jan. 1, 1973, and set it on a five per cent annual growth rate clip.

Barber announced big cuts in personal income taxes starting May 3. He said these would be equivalent to an extra $2.60 per week in the pockets of all taxpayers.

Gold Price Bill Sent To Nixon

WASHINGTON (UPI) —A bill devaluating the dollar 7.89 per cent by raising the official U.S. price of gold from $35 to $38 an ounce has gone to the White House for President Nixon's signature.

Marin Homeowner's Notebook

TERMITES INVADING MARIN HOMES NOW!

Every homeowner in Marin County should be on the alert for a cloud of winged ant-like insects anywhere around his home. It may be a swarm of termites!

As soon as the rains end in Marin County, all three types of termites found here send out swarms of flying "kings" and "queens" to start new nests. Swarming is heavy in the early spring and fall, but continue in some degree from late February through late October.

Termite colonies send out swarms only after they've been established for three years or more. The flying reproductives can go only a short distance, seldom more than 100 feet unless helped by winds. So if you see a cloud of swarmers or their discarded wings, there's a large termite nest nearby.

There is a silver lining in that cloud of swarmers, though. The nest is still fairly small (6,000 to 10,000 termites) when the first swarms are sent out. If you detect an early swarm, therefore, you've avoided the worst damage. Later, the nests grow to 250,000 termites or more.

The three types of termites in Marin have somewhat different habits for nesting and swarming.

All three types of termites have infested homes in every part of Marin, however. So every homeowner should be alert during the swarming season. If you see a swarm or discarded wings, get help from a structural pest control expert immediately. He'll make sure nothing clouds your home's future.

ZONING

preclude an inflex of dogs and people.

Others speaking in support included Dr. William W. Wood Jr., an economist from the University of California at Riverside and Harold Gregg, executive director of the Marin Conservation League.

Wood, who specializes in land use, said the rezoning would give the county "breathing space" in order to properly plan future uses in West Marin while at the same time protecting agriculture as an interim use.

The public interest, he said, would best be served by holding the land in its present state until it's decided how it should be used.

Gregg, meanwhile, argued that the county should not concern itself with reductions in land values since "investment in land is a gamble and taxpayers shouldn't be expected to make up the loss."

About six others in the audience spoke in support of the rezoning.

Leading the fight against it were developer Neils J. Schultz Jr. and San Rafael attorney Gil Medeiros, both members of the Marin Property Owners Association.

"I can't see how your (planning) staff can look at agriculture in Marin and say they are protecting a viable industry," Schultz said, adding that dairys are being forced to close constantly. "The ranchers are just ekeing out a living," he continued.

Schultz, who is credited with developing much of Larkspur, said at one point he viewed the rezoning proposal as simply a means of stopping population growth in Marin.

One of the few light moments of the meeting came when he recited:

We thank Thee, God, that thy grace
Has brought us to this lovely place.
And now, Dear Lord, we humbly pray
Thou wilst all others keep away.

"That's what it's all about," he charged.

Schultz told the Independent-Journal after the session that a group of property owners — not necessarily the Marin Property Owners Association — is poised to take the matter to court.

Attorney Medeiros, meanwhile, attacked the rezoning as an improper use of the Williamson Act, which does not specify what density the rezoning should be. "This is a land bank arrangement," he said, adding it has nothing to do with protecting agriculture.

Seven others, including a representative of the Marin County Farm Bureau, expressed similar opinions.

Nearly all opposing it said it would deny landowners the right to use their land for anything but agriculture and would therefore make selling it impossible.

"I think if this board does pass it (rezoning)," Supervisor Baar added, "it will have a lot of hardship cases of people who can't use their land (but still must pay taxes.)"

In approving the rezoning, the board agreed to review specific areas within the preserve at a future date to determine if higher densities could be allowed on an individual basis.

LABOR

board unanimously approved the resignation of the three AFL-CIO members from the board.

The UAW representative expressed sympathy for the federation's decision and Woodcock was understood to be meeting with top officials of his union in Detroit to decide whether to join the boycott.

No teamster official attended the meeting, nor did Harry Bridges, president of the West coast longshoremen's union, whose contract dispute with the board was the spark that ignited the AFL-CIO walkout and who also was invited.

"I have no way of knowing whether the UAW and Teamsters will walk out or not," Meany said. "We would like to have a united front on this but we have to make decisions for the AFL-CIO."

Meany contended that the board's five public members, headed by Chairman Judge George H. Boldt, were biased in favor of business, which also has five representatives.

Meany charged that most decisions are made before the board ever sits down. "This is not tripartism. This is pure and simple government control."

He also repeated labor's longstanding argument that wages were controlled while prices and business profits were allowed to rise.

Bail Bondsman Shot Near Civic Center

San Rafael bail bondsman Ralph M. Finley, 48, was shot and seriously wounded under mysterious circumstances last night as he sat in his car in the parking lot of a motel.

Finley whose home is in Ignacio, was reported recuperating today in the intensive care unit of Marin General Hospital, where he underwent surgery for a throat wound.

He was found with blood gushing from his neck by another patron of the Wiltshire Towers, a bar and motel north of San Rafael.

Deputy Sheriff John Goff said he received a call from the motel at 7:25 p.m., saying there was a man in a car who had been shot. When he arrived, he said he found Finley in a Fiat with the door open and one foot on the ground.

Goff said Finley tried to talk, but was unable to at that time.

At about the same time, as the sheriff's officer arrived, Finley's attorney, Theodore C. Lachelt, also walked up to the car. Lachelt handed Finley a piece of paper and a pen but the victim also was unable to write, Goff said.

When Goff asked Lachelt if he thought Finlay would attempt to take his own life, the attorney refused to answer, Goff said.

Later Finley told the officer a Negro male "with big bushy hair" had shot him.

Kermit Fisher, of Santa Venetia, the man who found Finley, said that he had been having a drink in the bar of the motel where Finley also had a drink earlier. He said the bail bondsman left the bar after making a phone call.

(Lachelt told Goff he had received a phone call from Finley, asking him to join him.)

When Fisher, who had been talking to the bartender about racing, went out to his car to get a racing form, he said he found Finley in a nearby car moaning and bleeding profusely.

When Deputy Sheriff Goff interviewed Finley later, at the hospital, the bail bondsmen told him that a Negro man with a reddish afro hair style had approached him as he was getting into his car. The man grabbed Finley's gun from a holster on his left hip, the bondsman said, and, after saying "You xxxxed Cora, I'll get you now," shot him.

He said he recognized the assailant, but did not name him.

VOTE

had 60 delegates pledged or favoring him against McGovern's 14. Both Muskie and McGovern conceded about 80 of the 160 at stake to an "uncommitted" slate committed to the wishes of Daley.

Returns from 10,343 precincts showed Walker, who coined the phrase "Police Riot" in the "Walker Report" in the 1968 Democratic convention disorders, leading Simon, 693,751 votes and 51 per cent to 659,006 votes and 49 per cent.

Hanrahan was a clear victor with 43 per cent of the votes in a three-way race. Daley's pick to replace him as the party's choice, former Chief Traffic Court Judge Raymond Berl, got 31 per cent and independent contender Donald Page Moore 27 per cent.

Rep. Roman Pucinski was the only candidate carrying the Daley banner who sailed through. He had no trouble defeating Dakin Williams, attorney brother of playwright Tennessee Williams, for the right to take on GOP Sen. Charles H. Percy.

The governor and state's attorney's races threatened Daley's usually unbeatable Chicago Democratic organization with its greatest embarrassment in almost 40 years. However, there were immediate indications Hanrahan and Daley could get together again.

Hanrahan, Daley's protege until four months ago, said, "No one should construe this victory as any kind of defeat for any political organization." Daley said he would support Hanrahan and Walker, too, if necessary. "There is no machine," he said. "The people have spoken. You win them and you lose them."

There was no equivocation in Muskie's assessment when he appeared at his headquarters Tuesday night. This was his second primary victory, but he had looked unimpressive in winning New Hampshire and was a dismal fourth in Florida. The Illinois results appeared to be just about what his managers had predicted a month ago and Muskie wanted to savor them.

He called it "a solid victory in a state that represents a true cross-section of the country. I will win at the convention and I will win the presidency. I'm not predicting I'll win every primary."

Larkspur School Board Begins Budget Study

The Larkspur School District board last night began lengthy deliberations on the 1972-73 budget, which is $100,000 above this year's in its preliminary form.

In a workshop session the board discussed a preliminary sum of $2,141,370, according to Virginia B. Davison, the superintendent's secretary. No proposed tax rate was mentioned, she said.

District taxpayers this year are paying $3.63 per $100 assessed valuation toward a budget of $1,943,521.

Last night's session replaced a budget discussion which had been set for Saturday morning, Mrs. Davison said.

Missile Lights Up The Sky

The light that flared in Marin skies at about 7 p.m. yesterday came from a Minuteman missile launched at Vandenberg Air Force Base, according to Col. John R. Walker, information officer at Hamilton Air Force Base.

The heat of the missile created crystals in its wake which were lighted by the glow of the sun and the light was seen throughout California, Walker said.

The missile was flying at about 200,000 to 300,000 feet and traveling at about 2,000 to 3,000 miles an hour when the rays of the sun caught the crystals, he said. "The only time this happens is at twilight," when the sun is below the horizon, he said.

2. A plan by the board for reducing its size from the present 36 members to between 15 and 24 members.

3. A training program for EOC board members and staff.

4. A plan for electing poor persons to the governing board.

5. A plan showing how the agency will measure program effectiveness.

6. Certification by a certified public accountant that the agency has internal control over use of funds.

7. A reduction in the number of bank accounts from the present 17 to two — one for payroll and one general.

8. Hiring of a fiscal officer by June 1. If not, federal funds will be suspended.

9. Provisions that all contracts in excess of $250 be submitted to the federal government for review and approval.

10. Persons hired as the new executive director, deputy director, and fiscal officer be subject to approval of the federal government.

The conditions imposed by Mercer grew out of a critical report drafted by a three-member task force which spent several days investigating the Marin EOC.

The investigating team was ordered into the EOC —along with an audit team — after it was disclosed that the EOC had received and then used nearly $63,000 in federal funds mistakenly sent it.

The resulticg controversy led to the resignation earlier this month of executive director W. Robert Lomax Jr., who has been ordered to repay about $1,700 of agency funds said to have been used for personal expenses.

The team's report was broken down into several parts and included some 41 specific findings — mostly critical.

Various EOC programs, the report says, are bogged down by uninformed and poorly trained staff and a lack of accounting procedures.

The report said no one was sure to what extent the poor of Marin are being served.

Lomax was painted throughout the report as a good public relations man but a poor administrator.

The team also found that the EOC governing board had not operated as a board and had not demanded of Lomax information needed to make proper decisions.

DREDGING

Rafael Canal, the board's staff noted. The mud was found to be so polluted that it could not be disposed of in the bay, the staff reported.

The result was cancellation of a series of small dredging projects in the canal. The increased cost of land or ocean disposal made the work prohibitively expensive, the staff said.

Defending the need for the regulations, the state Fish and Game Department warned that heavy metals accumulate in ever-increasing concentrations in the food chain, thus "can render fishery resources dangerous for human use."

Concentrations of heavy metals found in some mud in the bay are at least 1,000 times greater than the maximum permitted in municipal and industrial wastes, the department said.

Much of this poisonous pollution comes from sloppy handling of toxic materials in shipyards and other marine activites, it said. Controlling such handling on the waterfront eventually could eliminate the problem of such polluted mud, it added.

Col. Charles R. Roberts, district engineer for the Army Corps of Engineers, testifed that increased dredging costs to meet the regulations "may not give us a comparable value of environmental protection."

Opponents of the new regulations also argued land disposal is not a solution becuase too few lands sites are available for dumping dredged spoils.

One of the strongest attacks on the regulations came from Miriam E. Wolff, San Francisco port director. Anything which jeopardizes maritime trade through the bay, she warned, "will have a 'domino effect' throughout all of Northern California." One-third of Bay Area citizens "gain their livelihood from international trade," she said.

"Loss of business due to increased costs or inability of ships to reach our piers will be the first step toward a recession in this area. This in turn," she declared, "will reduce tax collections while increasing unemployment compensation and welfare payments.

"The net effect will be to delay improving the environment," she claimed, adding, "We must achieve a happy balance between environmental and economic activity."

Miss Wolff asserted that winds put more silt pollutants into the bay during a two-day storm "than comes from all of the maintenance dredging each year."

She and other critics of the regulations said the federal guidelines were based on incomplete sampling in the Great Lakes, data that cannot apply to the bay.

is consistent with our social policy approach ... so while we see no need for criminal sanctions against possession for personal use or against casual transfers, we recommend a number of provisions for confining marijuana use to the home."

Specifically, the panel recommended what it called "decriminalization," which would allow possession of pot for personal, private use, but would retain criminal controls on its production, distribution and public use.

At the state level, where most criminal prosecution of marijuana laws takes place, the panel would impose only fines for public use, except for disorderly conduct associated with marijuana intoxication which would carry a recommended penalty of up to 60 days in jail and-or a $100 fine.

The panel agreed with Nixon, who called Tuesday for uniformity in state laws. It said the cultivation, sale or distribution for profit and possession of marijuana with intent to sell should remain a felony.

Private distribution of small amounts of pot, and private possession for personal use, no longer should be offenses, it said.

Public possession of one ounce or less would not be an offense but the marijuana would be subject to seizure. Public possession of more than one ounce would be a criminal offense punishable by a fine of $100.

Public distribution of small amounts of pot not involving a profit, and its public use, each would be punishable by fines of $100.

Rep. Paul G. Rogers, D-Fla., and Rep. Tim Lee Carter, R-Ky., both panel members, recommended in a separate statement that in addition to the majority recommendation, a civil fine for possession of any amount of marijuana in private or public should be imposed.

Funeral for College of Marin educator Weaver Meadows of Kentfield will be Friday at Arlington National Cemetery, Va. Burial will be at Arlington.

He served as chairman of the business department at the College of Marin for almost 20 years after World War II, guiding the department's growth from a two-man faculty in 1948 to a 15-man faculty today. He continued to teach at the college after stepping down as department chairman in 1967.

Meadows also served on the business faculty of the University of San Francisco.

He was a native of Roswell, N.M. He received a bachelor's degree from Northern Arizona University and a master's degree in education from the University of Southern California in 1936. He joined the business faculty at San Jose College in 1937.

With the outbreak of World War II, he joined the Navy, beginning a career that would see 26 years of active duty, most of it concurrent with his service at the College of Marin.

In 1961 he was appointed commandant's representative for the 12th Naval District. He was chairman of the selection board for four western states for the armed services academies, and he was named an honorary alumnus of the Naval Academy at Annapolis.

He was a member of the Masons.

Meadows is survived by a son, Grady, of San Anselmo; two daughters, Karen, of San Anselmo, and Patricia, of Tiburon, and brothers and sisters in Arizona and New Mexico.

A memorial service will be held in Marin later.

JURY

September, the committee "felt it had enough evidence that we were considering recommending the courts establish procedures for expunging the records and hearing the appeals of persons who felt they had been victims of improper Sausalito police policies."

Hawes, who proposed the measure, said it was received "as a good idea, something we'll have to keep in mind when writing the final report" by at least several members of the investigating committee. "Nobody suggested it was a bad idea," he reported.

Hawes, Bennett and witnesses disagreed completely with yesterday's statement by jury foreman Milen C. Dempster that Monday's Independent-Journal report of testimony given the jury was inaccurate.

Dempster said none of 11 charges reported in the I-J was given to jurors, he said. "The implication that these items were part of the testimony before the committee of the grand jury is not accurate and is unfair to the city administralion of Sausalito."

The 11 items included complaints of brutality of some officers, dishonesty in department operations, falsification of records and allegations of special favors to certain persons.

Said Hawes, "I was present during the receipt of testimony regarding many of the 11 points and, if Mr. Dempster said they were not presented by witnesses, then I am amazed and disappointed at his leadership." He added that "Thejury's mantle of secrecy has apparently been used to distort."

One Accident Driver Treated

A San Rafael woman was treated at Marin General Hospital yesterday for injuries received in a three-car accident on Highway 101 near San Pedro Road.

Carol M. Brown, 25, of 209 Emerystone Terrace, received a bruise on her left leg, according to a hospital spokesman. Her car and two others — one driven by Nancy J. Blackburn, of 975 Bel Marin Keys Boulevard, and the other by Robert F. Lindsay, of 1091 Bel Marin Keys Boulevard — collided about 5:20 p.m., according to the California Highway Patrol. The other drivers were not hurt.

Two Booked In Pot Probe

Two San Rafael men yesterday were booked into Marin County Jail on suspicion of possessing marijuana after police received complaint of loud music in their home.

Forrest Philip Foster, 25, and Kevin James McFarland, 20, both of 45 Woodland, Apt. 7, were held to appear in Marin Municipal Court today.

Police said they noticed "a somewhat familiar smell" when responding to the 8:25 p.m. complaint, and a search revealed what appeared to be a half-burned marijuana cigarette and an unspecified amount of vegetable matter believed to be marijuana on a plate in the kitchen.

BARBARA WAHL

Barbara B. Wahl, 53, a Novato housewife, died unexpectedly at her home yesterday, apparently of natural causes, according to the coroner's office.

Mrs. Wahl was the wife of William H. Wahl of 312 San Luis Way, national sales manager for the food division, Foremost-McKesson. Coroner's deputies said she was discovered dead at 11 a.m. by her sister-in-law, Frances Hawthorne of Petaluma.

She was a native of Colorado and had been a resident of Novato for 7 years, of Marin for 26 years and of California 46 years.

Surviving, besides her husband, are two sons, Douglas A. Wahl of Inverness and James W. Wahl of Seattle; a brother, Ralph Douglass of Willows, Glenn County; a sister, Margaret Berlinger of Orland, Glenn County; and two granddaughters.

Funeral will be at 2 p.m. tomorrow at Keaton's Chapel of Marin. Entombment will be private.

DEBORAH McADAMS

Funeral was held yesterday in Tuolomne, Tuolomne County, for Deborah Anne McAdams, daughter of a former Mill Valley man and granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles C. McAdams of Mill Valley.

The girl, 17, died Thursday in San Francisco of injuries received last summer when she was kicked by her horse.

She was 17 and a resident of Tuolomne. In August of last year while training her horse Danny Boy, which she had raised from a colt, she was kicked in the stomach.

Her father, James C. McAdams, was a Mill Valley resident until he moved to Tuolomne.

IRMA LOCKETT

Private funeral for Irma B. Lockett, 79, of San Rafael was held yesterday in San Rafael.

She was born in Stockton and had lived in Oakland prior to moving to Marin County 27 years ago. She made her home at 1904 Fifth Avenue, San Rafael. During World War II, she was a private secretary at Moore's Drydock in Sausalito.

Her husband, the late William O. Lockett had been a salesman.

She was a member of long standing of the Mother Church of Christ Scientist of Boston, Mass., and the First Church of Christ Scientist of San Rafael.

LAURENCE DEL CURTO

Requiem Mass for Laurence (Butch) Del Curto, 57, Petaluma cattle dealer, will be offered at 11 a.m. tomorrow at St. Vincent de Paul Church, Petaluma.

Del Curto died Monday after collapsing while mowing the lawn at his home, 9999 Valley Ford Road. The Sonoma County Coroner's office said death apparently was due to a heart attack.

He was born in Dos Palos, Merced County, and moved to Valley Ford with his family as an infant. Del Curto worked as a butcher until World War II, when he served in the Navy. Since then he had been a cattle dealer in Valley Ford.

Del Curto was a member of Petaluma Elks Lodge 901; Native Sons of the Golden West, Nicasio Parlor, and the Petaluma Mens Bowling Association.

He is survived by his wife, Gilda; a son, Michael (Mickey) Del Curto; a daughter, Lauretta Del Curto, both of the family ranch; a sister, Olga Sartori of Tomales, and a brother, Reno Del Curto of Hollister.

U.S. SPACE SHUTTLE PROTOTYPE

This drawing, furnished by the National Aerospace Agency, shows the various duties that the U.S. space shuttle will perform in earth orbit missions. It will be put into space by a liquid or solid-fueled rocket. The second stage orbiter will resemble a Delta-winged airplane and will be piloted by two men who will fly it back to earth for an airplane-like landing. On the launch pad the orbiter will be mounted to the booster which will launch the orbiter to an altitude of about 40 miles. The orbiter with its payload and crew will detach and continue into an earth orbit for missions lasting about seven days or possibly as long as a month. The man-operated shuttle will deploy in earth orbit all types of scientific and applications satellites weighing up to 65,000 pounds and thereby replace most of the expendable launch vehicles currently used.

Chou Continually On Leadership Tightrope

By HENRY S. HAYWARD
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

HONG KONG — With the Nixon visit now history, and with his own adept handling of the meetings one of the highlights, Chou En-lai still has much to face.

For one thing, a man so prominent and successful is bound to have critics — both personal and policywise — to worry about. But he is a master at handling both.

The exceptional welcome accorded the Chinese premier when he returned to Peking after bidding the Nixons farewell in Shanghai testified not so much to his personal popularity as to high government sanction of how his foreign policies had turned out.

The slogan which greeted Chou En-lai and the welcomers at Peking airport was "Resolutely Support Chairman Mao's Revolutionary Line in Foreign Affairs."

In short, the mighty Mao Tse-tung's name and prestige were invoked directly and approving in conjunction with the man who was returning to the Chinese capital after having personally done the arranging and negotiating.

Little doubt exists that the acclaim for the Mao foreign policy was intended to reflect great credit on Chou as well.

Yet the publicly modest premier always has been careful to indicate that the policy of permitting relations with the United States to improve was not his own — but in accordance with Mao's desire.

By work and deed, he always coupled the chairman with his own actions.

In this context, it has been doubly hard for any critics of the American leader's visit — and there undoubtedly were critics — to direct their fire against Chou En-lai with out the risk of attacking Mao as well.

Since criticizing Mao is anathema in the Peoples Republic, Chou's opponents are effectively muzzled as far as criticizing him on his policy is concerned.

Yet Chou still faces a formidable problem about his position in the hierarchy — a problem which he unquestionably already has given careful thought.

Here he is, a well-tried third-ranking member of the ruling Chinese clique who has just successfully concluded a remarkable confrontation with a former "enemy" leader during which he managed to give nothing away — and yet please both his guest and his own country.

Or should he remain in safer No. 3 position from which he has operated so brilliantly in recent years?

Two No. 2's already have vanished into the Chinese equivalent of outer darkness — former Chief of State Liu Shao-chi and former Vice-Chairman Lin Piao. Nobody knows this better than the alert Chou.

He has gotten where he is — and remained throughout past purges — by being alert and careful, as well as brilliantly informed. He has learned that self effacement a few notches down the leadership ladder pays dividends in safety and durability. For as No. 2 even Chou might someday displease or annoy Mao.

Enemies have tried to get Chou before, but he always has managed to stay clear. Sometimes he may have contributed to an enemy's future downfall in response.

Meanwhile, his choice may well be to remain in the third position. It is high enough to permit a major say in foreign and domestic policy, but not so high as to leave him exposed.

He may even have considerable to say about who is named the new deputy chairman.

Old Courthouse Bid Submitted

A Sacramento construction company yesterday made a formal offer of $650,000 for the old Courthouse property in downtown San Rafael.

The offer by McKeon Construction Co. is $100,000 below the minimum price set when the Marin County Board of Supervisors approved an option agreement with San Rafael, authorizing the city to act as sole agent in selling the county-owned property.

In a letter to the city, San Rafael attorney Albert Bianchi, representing McKeon, said he thought the company's offer of $650,000 was "reasonable" for several reasons.

He said the county had indicated it would probably be willing to accept $650,000 for the property if a "significant" portion of the square block was retained as open space.

In a "usual situation," Bianchi said, the seller (San Rafael) could also expect to pay from 6 per cent to 10 per cent commission to an agent. That commission, on a $750,000 sale price, would amount to $45,000 to $75,000, the attorney said, suggesting the city was saving that money because there would be no commission on the sale.

Finally, Bianchi said leaving the property as it is "could ultimately be extremely unfortunate for the entire downtown San Rafael area." He said that sales tax revenue to the city has "taken an adverse turn" and that the McKeon plan "in all likelihood would reverse this trend."

San Rafael City Mgr. James H. McCown questioned some of Bianchi's rationale for the lower price, but said the offer would be studied.

No agent is handling the sale for the city, he said, so in any case there will be no commission paid by San Rafael.

As for sales tax revenue, McCown said it was higher this year than last, although figures had not yet been broken down for specific areas of the city, such as downtown.

The proposal to lower the sale price to $650,000 in exchange for open space was made in February by Supervisor John F. McInnis, but negotiating teams for the city and county rejected the idea when they worked out their option agreement.

The feeling was, McCown said, that if a "worthwhile" offer was made, the $750,000 price agreed to by the city and county could be renegotiated.

Bianchi enclosed with his letter a $1,000 check to the city as an initial deposit on the property. He said the offer would be considered revoked if it was not accepted by April 3.

McCown said he advised the city council, city attorney and county officials of the offer yesterday, but added the council was "not going to be stampeded" by the April 3 deadline. "It's an offer. That's the way we're looking at it," he said.

He said the city could decide first if it liked the offer before discussing the lower price with the board of supervisors.

The McKeon proposal, presented to the city council Monday, envisions an eight-story office building linked with a three-story building, a parking facility and 45 per cent of the property left as open space.

Bolinas Group Plans Homeowners' Survey

A questionnaire to survey Bolinas residents on a variety of topics has been approved by the Bolinas Planning Group, Paul Kayfetz of the group's administrative committee reported yesterday.

About 60 persons appeared at Monday's meeting, he said, to select questions from a list of suggested topics. Residents will be asked about their life styles, sources of income, employment and transportation needs and their opinions on future community development, tourism and existing community facilities.

He said the planning body agreed to conduct a spot survey of either each fifth or seventh house in Bolinas, depending on the number of volunteers who assist. He said approximately 60 persons have offered to help.

Interviewers will go from house to house with the questions and questionnaries will also be mailed to property owners who live outside the area, he said.

Kayfetz said the planning group also approved a plan by the Marin County Public Works Department to install speed limit and narrow road and pedestrian warning signs on Terrace Avenue, as well as a no-left turn sign and a stop sign at two dangerous intersections.

He Wanted His Rug To Stay Clean

During a preliminary hearing in Marin Municipal Court for Michael L. Freeman, 26, it was testified that when officers had gone to Freeman's home Jan. 13 to question him, he had asked them to stay in the kitchen because carpets in the other part of the house had just been cleaned.

An officer, however, walked through the residence to the front door to let in another agent and noticed suspected drugs in the dining room on his way.

Judge Robert A. Smallman ruled yesterday that the agent had no right to go through the house. The officers had gone to see Freeman to question him about possible connection to an Oakland drug case. They said they found marijuana and suspected hashish at his residence.

Tiburon Delays On Moratorium

The Tiburon City Council expressed support last night for extending the 90-day building moratorium on the community's ridgelands, but delayed a decision on what hilltop properties ultimately should be preserved as open space.

The council, meeting for the sixth time in three months on plans to preserve the scenic ridgelands, set a public hearing for April 3 to lengthen the moratorium, due to expire at the end of the month.

Councilman Albert H. Sennett noted the moratorium was not an outright building ban, since developers may obtain use permits for construction that meets the city's present open space thinking.

No new extension date was mentioned, although the council made it clear ridgeland preservation was a complex question and that a November bond issue to buy some of the land might be in the offering.

The council was split, however, over whether all of the 470 acres now falling under the moratorium should be included in an extension. And it could not agree on which of the 29 affected parcels, valued anywhere from $3 million to $15 million, should eventually be part of an open space corridor on the ridge.

After a series of ill-fated motions, the five-member council, with councilman Branwell D. Fanning absent, asked city staff and the San Francisco firm of Williams and Mocine, city planning consultants, to present a sketch at the April 3 session including lands that would embrace the linear park proposal.

Two of the councilmen, M. Carlisle Becker and Mayor Denis T. Rice, had posed various schemes for including all or part of most of the 29 parcels, either by outright purchase or through such means as ordinance, rezoning or easement, into an open space package.

But colleagues Anne L. Ellinwood, who dubbed the process an ill-timed "grab bag," and Sennett, believing the proposals failed to strike a balance between open space needs and what the city could afford, resisted.

City Mgr. Bert A. Balmer said in a report to the council an ambitious acquisition program might mean a bond issue of $1 million, requiring $40 more per year in taxes for a resident with a $50,000 home. But he believed the purpose was worthy and that the bonds would have citizen support.

The council said it would meet in closed session prior to the April 3 session to interview financial consultants who would advise the city on various property acquisition procedures, including through federal grants.

In addition, at the request of Miss Ellinwood, the council is expected to take up April 3 preliminary recommendations for city zoning alterations that will compliment the present open space drive and an open space element to the city master plan being prepared by Williams and Mocine.

Williams and Mocine representatives, in an outline of open space element progress to date, said they expected preliminary plans would be ready for city adoption by the end of June.

'Heritage Tree' Format And Philosophy Approved

The Novato Planning Commission has approved the "format and philosophy" of a proposed "heritage tree" ordinance, according to planning technician Michael Harlock.

After a review of the proposed ordinance Monday night, however, commissioners asked for a revised definition of what constitutes a "heritage tree," he said.

Under the ordinance a property owner would need a use permit before he altered or removed a "heritage tree."

A "heritage tree" is defined as one having a circumference of 48 inches or more at a point 24 inches above the ground, or a tree or group of trees that by location constitute an important city landmark.

Parks and Recreation Commissioner John A. Trumbull sent a letter protesting the philosophy of the ordinance, which would put control of trees on private property in the city's hands.

Trumbull said the burden should be on the city to prove why privately owned trees should be preserved, Harlock reported.

SAN JOSE (UPI)—Earl Caldwell, 37, a New York Times reporter, was arraigned Monday on charges of possession of marijuana.

Municipal Court Judge William Harris continued the case until Friday for entry of his plea.

Wayside Inn Changes Slogan: Women Included

SUDBURY, Mass. (UPI)—The Wayside Inn, made famous by Henry Wadsworth Longfellow, has changed its slogan to adapt to women's liberation.

Francis J. Koppeis, innkeeper of the nonprofit inn and museum, said the slogan "Food and Lodging for Man and Beast," has been changed to read "Food and Lodging for Man, Woman and Beast."

The inn was the setting for Longfellow's "Tales of a Wayside Inn," which included the "Midnight Ride of Paul Revere."

Koppeis said the word "beast" must be retained in the slogan because Massachusetts law states no establishment can be granted an innkeeping license unless it makes "suitable provisions for a stranger or traveler and also for his horses and cattle."

College Trustee Hits Character Of Schools

A College of Marin trustee objected last night to what he called "the characteristic of mindlessness" in American schools, and suggested that the British "open schools" might have the answer.

Donald K. Felt, chairman of the Marin Community College District board, was speaker at a dinner given by San Rafael Lodge 1108, B.P.O. Elks, at the Elks Club to honor 17 winners of Elks' leadership and scholarship awards for high school seniors.

In a rambling discourse on American schools and their shortcomings, Felt declared: "How we treat children may determine, more than what we teach them, what they will become." American schools, he suggested treat their pupils with contempt.

The high school and college system, said Felt, "creates a lot of working for grades and not working for learning."

Nevertheless, he said teachers and school administrators must be held accountable for results, students "must be introduced to the moral values" and must be given a broad cultural background.

The "open classroom" should be carried beyond the primary grades into high school and colleges to achieve this, Felt proposed.

When the speaker asked for comments from the young scholarship winners, the only response was from David Urquhart, San Rafael High School senior, who said: "It sounds like a whole new system that doesn't sound feasible."

Attorney Raps Souza's Quotes

Attorney Bella H. Aaron today objected to being quoted by Fairfax City Councilman Robert R. Sousa in his testimony at Monday night's hearing on firing of Police Chief James R. Orr.

"Anything I said (to the Fairfax City Council) was said in an executive session, and should be so treated," declared Mrs. Aaron.

Souza quoted Mrs. Aaron as telling the council in 1969 that Orr "should have psychiatric care." Mrs. Aaron said she would neither affirm nor deny that she had made such a statement at the closed session.

Initiative Petition Leader Will Talk

James Bailey of San Jose, spearheading an initiative petition campaign that would revise California's Revenue and Taxation Code to tax capital gains as income, will meet with interested persons and answer questions Tuesday in San Rafael.

A group called the Committee to End Tax Loopholes is coordinating the initiative drive and sponsoring Bailey's appearance. The meeting will be at 8 p.m. in the former Northwestern Pacific Railroad Station at Fourth Street and Tamalpais Avenue.

Semifinalists Picked For College Scholarships

Seven students from Marin and Southern Sonoma high schools are among 12 semifinalists in the North Bay Division of the Pacific Gas and Electric Co.'s $64,000 college scholarship program in Northern and Central California.

The division includes Lake, Napa and most of Mendocino counties, in addition to Marin and Sonoma.

The 12 division semifinalists are aiming for a total of 16 scholarships that will be awarded at a dinner May 8 at the Fairmont Hotel in San Francisco. Each scholarship is worth $4,000.

Marin and Southern Sonoma high school seniors who have made the semifinals are Paul W. Cane of Redwood High School, Larkspur; Stephen A. Casalnuovo, Sir Francis Drake High School, San Anselmo; Anthony B. Leuin and Daniel J. Melcon, both of Terra Linda High School; Richard D. Tuck of San Marin High School, Kevin J. Ryan of San Rafael High School and Carl A. Dobson of Rancho Cotati High School, Rohnert Park.

Of the 14 other scholarships that will be given out, 12 will be awarded on a regional basis and two will be given to seniors who have advanced meritoriously despite social or economic disadvantages.

North Bay Divison semifinalists will be judged for the finals on March 29 by a panel that will include David Menary, Marin Municipal Court judge.

A total of 3,700 students originally entered the competition in Northern and Central California. The scholarships are given in memory of James B. Black, a PG&E president.

Student Gives Away His $700 U.C. Fellowship

BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI)—A 22-year-old University of California graduate student gave away his $700 fellowship in $1 bills to scrambling students Tuesday. He said Jesus told him to do it.

Romeo Fita of Portland, Maine, who calls himself Abraham Fig, talked about christianity to the crowd and said the cash giveaway was to "wake people up to who their false gods were."

The economics student made five trips to Sproul Plaza from a nearby bank, carrying the money in a cardboard box. After flinging the last box of money over a crowd of several hundred students, he called on the crowd to follow him, and walked away.

The would-be converts were too busy fighting over the final $200.

Montessori Schools Will Be Toured

Montessori schools in Terra Linda and Corte Madera will be toured Tuesday as part of the activities of an International Montessori Symposium that will convene beginning Saturday in Palo Alto.

The six-day conference will focus on the Montessori approach to the development of young people.

Countywide Park District Voted

Marin County's Board of Supervisors will ask voters in November for permission to establish a countywide park and recreation district, requiring about $1,400,000 in new tax revenue.

Supervisors will also seek permission to act as a board of directors for the new district, levying 10 cents per $100 of assessed valuation for open land acquisition and 10 cents for park development. The measure passed unanimously yesterday.

Donald L. Rolph Jr., county park planner, said a 10-cents in the tax rate would raise about $700,000.

The money will be kept separate from the county's general fund, according to supervisors.

The board instructed County Counsel Douglas J. Maloney to write a formal draft of the ballot proposal. Maloney said after the meeting he would submit it April 4 for final approval.

Once the resolution passes the supervisors, it travels to Sacramento and the Local Agency Formation Commission before Marin County voters see it. The Legislature must grant permission for the board to act as directors of a special district, and the commission must decide whether such a district can be formed.

If both approve, the measure will appear on the November ballot.

The supervisor's measure closely parallels one suggested by Pierre W. Joske, director of the county Parks and Recreation Department, with the exception of the 10 cent tax rate proposed for parks development. During discussion of the resolution, Chairman Peter R. Arrigoni said as he understood regional park districts of which the proposed one is a modification they could levy a maximum of 10-cent tax.

When Michael Wornum proposed the resolution, however, he included two 10 cent levies, one for open space acquisition and one for parks development.

By choosing to modify laws already established governing regional park districts, supervisors ruled out the possibility of setting up an autonomous, regional district, with its own board of directors, like the East Bay Regional Park District.

In an associated measure, supervisors voted 4-1, Louis H. Baar dissenting, to contribute $1,900 to hire a planning consultant in the two-year-old North Ridge Open Space Area controversy. The county's money matches a like amount to be contributed by Mill Valley, Larkspur, Corte Madera, Mrs. Juliette Kraiger and the Marin County Conservation League.

In asking for the money, Harold E. Gregg, president of the conservation league, presented a sketched map of the area, and said the land was worth approximately $1,836,500. He said a planner would research and draw a more exact map, setting legal boundaries, appraising properties, and establishing ownerships.

Baar argued the planner would not be needed until the communities involved agreed in principle to buy the land, saying enough information was now available for them to decide.

Gregg said no agreement could be asked until accurate figures were available.

Jury Convicts 17-Year-Old In Deadly Fire

PHOENIX, Ariz. (UPI)—A 17-year-old youth has been convicted of 28 counts of first degree murder for setting the Tucson Pioneer Hotel on fire in December, 1970.

Louis Taylor began sobbing as the clerk read the verdict Tuesday. The jury of eight men and four women rendered the verdict and fixed the penalty at life imprisonment after deliberating almost 24 hours.

The state based its circumstantial case primarily on conflicting statements Taylor made about why he was in the hotel and differing versions he gave about how the fire started.

The fire swept through several floors of the hotel. Most of the 28 victims, many of them Christmas shoppers from northern Mexico, were asphyxiated by heavy smoke and fumes from burning carpets in the hallways.

Tiburon Trails Plan Approved By County

The Marin County Board of Supervisors yesterday approved the long-stalled Tiburon Trails Plan which seeks to insure public access along Tiburon Ridge. (Another supervisors story, page 1.)

The plan, drafted by the county planning department in early 1970, has been bogged down at various approval levels including the City of Tiburon which was part of the planning venture.

It envisions a meandering trail along the scenic ridgeline from Highway 101 to Raccoon Strait. The trail would pass over private property but would remain in public use through what are termed "floating easements."

The easements would require developers to grant a 10-foot right-of-way at some point across their property with fixed entry and exit points to protect continuity of the trail in passing from one property to another.

The plan was approved by the parks and recreation commission and the planning commission earlier this year.

The Marin County Board of Supervisors also:

COUNTY PLAN — Set April 18 for a "workshop session" with the City-County Planning Council of Marin to discuss the Preliminary Countywide General Plan.

APPOINTMENTS — Appointed Victor Donati, former Larkspur Planning commisioner, to the Marin County Juvenile Delinquency prevention commission, replacing Jack Heard who has resigned; Opha Barnes of Marin City to the Marin County Redevelopment Agency, replacing L. A. White who has resigned; Stewart Purcell of Inverness to the Inverness Public Utilities District, replacing Donald J. Colbert who has resigned.

REMODELING — Approved plans and specifications for about $13,000 worth of office space remodeling in the Hall of Justice and Administration Building.

ABATEMENT — Discontinued nuisance abatement action against Jack and Herbert Martin since the two men have ceased filling portions of Bothin Marsh near Dolan's Corners in Tamalpais Valley and have performed some clean-up work.

FIRE DISTRICT — Approved increasing the size of the Stinson Beach Fire Protection District Board from its present three members to five. It appointed John L. Jones and Otto Reutinger to fill the new seats.

TAXES — Approved amendments to the county's sales and use tax ordinance placing a 5 per cent sales tax on gasoline. The increase in sales tax, approved by the state last year, will benefit mass transit.

EEL RIVER — Approved allocating two of the county's five seats on the Eel River Water Council to the Marin Municipal Water District. One will be filled by the North Marin Water District and the other two by the board of supervisors.

CAPITAL IMPROVEMENTS — Set April 4 for a public hearing on the county's proposed capital improvement program forecast for fiscal years 1972-73 through 1977-78.

DISTRICT ATTORNEY — Rejected on a 3-2 vote, Supervisors Louis H. Baar and John F. McInnis favoring, hiring an additional deputy for the district attorney's office. The office has 14 deputies.

CENTER POINT — Approved a $6,000 grant to the Center Point drug abuse program which has run short of operating funds.

CONTRACT — Continued to March 28 a proposed four-year contract with Agricultural Commissioner R. Allan Ballard calling for a $175 per month pay hike the first two years and another $175 pay hike the second two. He currently makes $1,300 per month.

FLOOD ZONE — Continued to March 28 setting a public hearing on dissolution of the Ross Valley Flood Control District Subzone Nine. Supervisor Peter R. Arrigoni was criticized by Stewart Boxer of Greenbrae, a subzone director, for not informing the subzone it was a maintenance zone only and for permitting capital improvement project planning to continue.

TOWNHOUSES — Approved a master plan and rezoning for a 75-unit townhouse development west of North San Pedro Road near Lowell Avenue in Santa Venetia. The development, called Venetia Cove, will be built on 10.5 acres.

Baltimore Canyon Hiking Trail Lawsuit Ordered

Marin County supervisors authorized the county counsel's office yesterday to start legal action against owners of the Baltimore Canyon property near Larkspur, long sought by outdoor enthusiasts as a public hiking area.

According to Thomas G. Hendricks, deputy county counsel, months of negotiations with the A.A. Tiscornia Estate have proven fruitless in attempts to secure public access to the area.

Hendricks said the legal action is necessary "so that the court may determine whether or not the public has a paramount right to utilize the trail for hiking purposes."

For nearly two years, hikers have been prodding the supervisors to take a hard line in acquiring public access to the scenic canyon leading to Mount Tamalpais.

Early last year, the executrix of the estate, Alice B. Vincilione, fenced the mouth of the canyon, leaving only a small gap for hikers to enter and leave.

The fencing action brought loud cries of protest from hikers who staged a "hike in" in protest of the action.

Points of interest in the Canyon, which starts at the end of Madrone Avenue, include the Old Quarry where blue basalt was quarried for Larkspur's Blue Rock Inn, Indian carved trees, the Silver Forest, the Dawn Falls and other natural splendors. There is also a wide variety of wild and plant life along the main hiking trail with runs a mile and a half up the canyon.

In support of public access, the Sierra Club has scheduled a hike into the canyon for 1 p.m. April 1.

Penngrove Collision Injures Motorist

Vern Fickert, 27, of 1041 Old Redwood Highway, Cotati, was treated at Hillcrest Hospital for leg and arm cuts suffered in a three-car accident yesterday at 3:15 p.m. on Old Redwood Highway near Adobe Road, Penngrove.

The California Highway Patrol said Ficker collided with cars driven by Judith Martinson, 20, of 7685 Isabel Drive, Cotati, and Doris Peracca, 43, of 1546 Ely Road, Cotati, as well as two parked cars.

Richmond Police Nab An Escaper

RICHMOND (UPI) —A 26-year-old San Quentin escaper wanted for a fatal robbery in Washington State was arrested while attempting to buy narcotics in this San Francisco Bay Area city Monday night.

Police said the man, identified as Michael Ede, 26, had the gun and identification of a Tacoma policeman, and stole I.D.s of seven other persons when apprehended.

Officers said Ede, originally of San Jose, escaped in 1971 while being moved from San Quentin, where he was serving an armed robbery sentence, to the California men's Colony at Chino.

Police said Ede went to Washington State, where he allegedly pulled a robbery in Seattle in which a woman was killed with a monkey wrench. He was arrested by Tacoma police but got the jump on Police Lt. Don Taylor, took his gun and forced him to drive around the Tacoma area for three hours.

Taylor was left handcuffed to a post and his gun, badge and credit cards taken.

Richmond police said Ede apparently then came to San Francisco, from where he drove to Richmond and arranged to purchase some heroin.

The other party to the negotiations tipped police and four officers arrested Ede when he showed up at a Richmond diner Monday night. He offered no resistance.

Rocket Fueled For April Moon Flight

CAPE KENNEDY (UPI)—Apollo 16's Saturn 5 rocket has been loaded with 212,000 gallons of kerosene for its April 16 flight to the moon.

The massive first stage was fueled Monday in the final step before the start of a week-long countdown rehearsal early Wednesday. The test will wind up with a simulated launch March 29.

Employee Is Fired Upon

An employee of the Marin Municipal Water District, checking tanks west of Oak Manor Drive in a hilly area outside Fairfax Thursday, was fired at three times, sheriff's deputies said taody.

District worker Peter Nivergelt told officers that as he emerged from a pumping station about 1:50 p.m., three shots were fired at him from a hill top.

He said he ran out of the line of fire. He then saw a car leaving from the hill top.

Polish Safety

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Food and Drug Administration has ordered all furniture polish containing 10 per cent or more petroleum distillates to be sold in "children proof" packages, effective six months from now.

Jury Trial Set In Auto Theft

Andrew Lee Johnson, 20, of Marin City, has pleaded innocent to a charge of grand theft stemming from the theft of a car from Marin Heliport.

A jury trial was set for the week of May 1.

A Book Ripoff Posing Problem

Sophomores and juniors at San Marin High School face an incomplete grade in world studies unless books stolen from the school library are returned.

Nearly half the collection of books on comparative religion, valued at more than $500, have been taken according to the Social Studies Department.

The department notified parents that if the 68 books weren't returned, the students would receive an incomplete grade.

Principal Henry J. Moroski explained to the Novato Unified School District board last night that the books disappeared while world studies classes were assigned to do a research paper on the world's major religious.

"To date half the books have been returned," he said, "and students are grappling with the problem."

Book theft is not unique to San Marin High, but is a "problem that plagues the total educational institution," he said.

Since the thefts, the students are confronted by the social problem of "all facing restrictions for the actions of some," he commented.

The student council has considered using dance profits to replenish the book supply, Moroski said.

Since the notice went out to parents, he has received "some anonymous and some threatening" telephone calls, but the majority of parents have been understanding, Moroski said. Generally, they were against punishing the innocent, he said.

If students are given an incomplete grade, they will have a chance to erase it with another report at a later date, he said.

Trustee Jan Murray said: "I think it would be unfair to punish students who were innocent," and board president Ronald D. Schenck said he had "strong feelings about mass punishment," and hoped the matter would be resolved.

Novato Board Views Teacher Complaints

Novato taxpayers alone can't adequately support schools, according to a Novato Unified School District committee which studied a teacher survey taken last spring.

In the survey teachers expressed dissatisfaction over salaries and indicated concern over "lack of community support" for education.

The committee report submitted to the district board last night said "adequate financial support can only come from redistribution of state funds."

The committee also recommended that criticism of district administrators be channeled through the professional relations committee.

In the survey, the teachers listed complaints ranging from too many administrators to personal criticism of individual administrators.

The committee suggested that disunity among teachers, mentioned in the teacher survey, be studied and acted upon by teacher organizations.

The Novato School Board Also:

SCHOOL SITE — Deferred until October response to a request from A. R. Allan Inc. of Mill Valley to determine if a proposed 10-acre school site in the Crossroads area will be needed for a school after Supt. James G. ESEA PROJECT — Authorized an expanded Elementary and Secondary Act program in language arts and mathematics at a cost of $14,757 in federal funds after Lee Hilton, program coordinator, reported that the program covers 225 pupils in the district and eight from Our Lady of Loretto School, all educationally deprived.

Buildings Get Break On Taxes

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— The Assessmen Appeals Board has granted 11 Fisherman's Wharf properties substantial tax reductions, records showed Tuesday.

The board reduced the market or cash value of the properties by $1.67 million.

The Russ Building in the financial district was given a $1 million reduction while the value of three Golden Gateway buildings were dropped by $1.03 million.

The board gave the Burgermeister Brewery a $3.5 million reduction because it went out of business.

The actions will reduce the city's tax rolls by more than $7 million and will reduce revenues by about $220,000.

This Swiss Dessert Is Grand Finale For A Dinner Party

Like a well-written play, a carefully-planned meal needs a rousing finale. Expert in providing this are the Swiss, who give as much attention to their desserts as they give to their main courses.

A notable example of this devotion to desserts is Robert Keller, the executive chef of the Swiss Center Restaurant in New York. Keller mastered his art in the traditional Swiss way, beginning his formal culinary studies at 16 at the Gewerbe Schulze, Zurich's noted hotel school, and working his way up from apprentice though saucier, pastry chef, banquet chef to his present post.

Now the head of the Swiss Center's kitchen, Keller gives special attention to the restaurant's dessert menu.

CHERI-SUISSE RICE MOLD
Serves 4 - 6

2 cups milk
Rind of ½ lemon, grated
¼ teaspoon unflavored gelatin
1 tablespoon milk
1 tablespoon Cheri-Suisse
3 tablespoons sugar
½ vanilla bean

Quickly blanch rice in boiling water. Set to drain in collander. Mix milk, sugar, lemon rind and vanilla bean in saucepan. Bring to a boil and remove vanilla bean. Add rice, and simmer uncovered until soft (15-20 minutes), stirring frequently. (Add a bit more milk if it evaporates before rice is soft.) Soften gelatin in tablespoon of milk. Stir into hot rice. Allow to cool slightly and add Cheri-Suisse. While still warm, press into mold lightly moistened with cold water. Refrigerate until chilled through and firm (3-4 hours).

TOPPING

3¼ package vanilla pudding mix
5 cups milk
12 maraschino cherries, chopped
3 tablespoons Cheri-Suisse Liqueur

Dissolve custard mix in one cup cold milk. Bring four cups of milk to boil in sauce pan and add dissolved custard. Cook according to package directions. Stir in chopped cherries and Cheri-Suisse. Chill.

Before serving, unmold rice by immersing mold briefly in warm water and turning into plate. Spoon topping over top and sides.

Lamb-Orange Kabobs Offer A Touch Of The Orient

When cookery takes to skewers interest in dinner soars, for kabobs offer unlimited possibilities for that cherished menu variety. They also offer opportunity to add a bit of glamour to some of the more economical meat cuts.

When broiled on skewers with fruit and/or vegetables, cubes cut from the lamb shoulder can rival more costly rib or loin chops in appetite appeal.

LAMB-ORANGE KABOBS

2 pounds boneless lamb, cut in 1½-inch cubes
⅓ cup salad oil
⅓ cup soy sauce
¼ cup lemon juice
2 oranges, each cut in 8 wedges
12 small canned onions

Blend salad oil, soy sauce and lemon juice. Add lamb cubes and marinate two hours in the refrigerator. Thread meat on four 12-inch skewers alternately with orange wedges and onions. Brush with marinade and broil three inches from the heat, turning occasionally until lightly browned, about 10 minutes. Brush with marinade and continue broiling three to four minutes longer or until done. Six servings.

Male Shoppers Buy The Meat

The male shopper, though in the minority, more often than not is the primary shopper for his household, according to a recent survey.

On the average, he is a 43.7 year old high school graduate with a family income of $11,285 per year, and he spends an above-average $10.46 on each of 2.3 shopping trips a week for his family of 3.2 persons.

Fresh meat is the item he purchases most often, regardless of his age or income group. Frozen foods, dairy products, fresh produce and other items that need frequent replacement also account for a high percentage of his purchases.

The High Cost Of Packaging

Nearly nine cents out of every dollar spent for farm-produced foods goes to pay for packaging costs. Of the consumer's $101.6 billion bill for these foods, a whopping $8.8 billion was spent for containers and packaging materials needed to get them from farm to table.

Paper products topped the list, accounting for 42 per cent of packaging costs.

Metal containers accounted for 22 per cent; glass 9 per cent; wood, textiles and miscellaneous, 18 per cent.

Appealing Salad For The Diet

Serve a fruit dressing with shrimp salad. It's a taste experience you'll repeat often during the year. This new salad with its unusual dressing is appealing to calorie watchers, since it's made without oil. Canned fruit cocktail is used for convenience and flavor in "lemon fruit dressing" served over "molded shrimp salad."

LEMON DRUIT DRESSING

1 can (17 ounces) fruit cocktail
Water
½ cup lemon juice
2 teaspoons sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
3 teaspoons cornstarch
Molded Shrimp Salad
Crisp lettuce

MOLDED SHRIMP SALAD

1 envelope plain gelatin
3 tablespoons water
1¼ teaspoons salt
2½ tablespoons finely chopped green onion
2 teaspoons dry mustard
2 tablespoons lemon juice
2 eggs, beaten
½ cup water
1 cup commercial sour cream
½ cup finely chopped celery
1 tablespoon chopped pimiento
1 can (4½ ounces) deveined shrimp, drained
⅛ teaspoon grated lemon rind

Drain fruit cocktail, saving syrup; combine syrup with water to make one cup. Combine this liquid with lemon juice, sugar, salt and cornstarch. Bring to boil, lower heat and simmer until clear and slightly thickened. Remove from heat, cool slightly, add drained fruit and chill thoroughly. Serve as dressing over molded shrimp salad on crisp lettuce.

Molded Shrimp Salad: Soften gelatin in water. Combine salt, onion, mustard, lemon juice, eggs, water and cream. Cook over moderate heat, stirring until slightly thickened; (mixture may look slightly curdled at first but will smooth out on cooking.) Add gelatin and heat until dissolved. Remove from heat and cool until mixture begins to jell. Fold in celery, pimiento, shrimp and lemon rind. Spoon into individual molds and chill until firm. Unmold on crisp lettuce and serve with chilled lemon fruit dressing.

Iceberg 'Thaw'

After months of short supply and high prices, iceberg lettuce is expected to be plentiful and lower priced in coming months, the Western Iceberg Lettuce, Inc., has announced. Poor weather had affected the lettuce crop in recent months, it explained.

SERVE A MOLDED shrimp salad for spring luncheon. This one is topped with a lemon fruit dressing.

Dress Up Liver Cuts For Vitamins

Great grandmother ladled out sulphur and molasses to her family in the spring to combat the lethargy long associated with the season. Possibly spirits perked up simply to ward off another dose of this brew.

In this more scientific era, when summer stays in the grocery year-round, a nutrition-conscious homemaker looks to foods high in vitamins and minerals to maintain her family's vim and vitality.

Likewise in her market purchases of beef, pork, lamb and veal, she recognizes not only protein, for which meats long have been valued, but vitamins and minerals as well.

MEAT IS A top source of the important B-complex vitamins thiamin, riboflavin, niacin, B12 and B6. These are vitamins that are necessary for our health and well being. Meat also is valued as a basic source of iron. This is especially important since iron deficiency anemia is today's most prevalent nutritional disease.

All meats make generous contributions of these vitamins and iron. Some furnish especially high amounts of specific nutrients, such as pork's contribution of thiamin.

Liver tops all meats as a nutritional giant. It is the richest food source of vitamin A and of iron (in a highly available form) and) and contributes vitamins C and D as well as the B-complex group. No wonder nutrition authorities advise serving liver once a week.

LIVER A LA MODE

3 tablespoons flour
1 teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
1 teaspoon dill weed
2 tablespoons lard or drippings
2 medium-sized tomatoes
⅓ cup mayonnaise
2 tablespoons chil sauce
2 tablespoons pickle relish
2 teaspoons horseradish

Remove any skin from liver and divide into six servings. Combine flour, salt, pepper and dill weed. Dredge liver in flour mixture and brown on both sides in lard or drippings, allowing about five minutes for each side. Sprinkle any leftover mixture on liver while browning the first side. Cover and cook slowly 10 minutes or until tender.

Slice tomatoes crosswise into three slices each. Combine mayonnaise, chili sauce, pickle relish and horseradish. Mix well. When liver is cooked, arrange on platter, place a tomato slice on top of each serving and spoon one and a half tablespoons of mayonnaise mixture over each. Six servings.

Sandwiches Gain Menu Status In The Spring

Sandwiches gain menu status in the spring. Often relegated to the lunch box or snack category during the cold months, they blossom like flowers as the weather warms.

Hearty hot sandwich creations combining meat, vegetables and sauce achieve main course importance. This appetizing combination of hot smoked pork shoulder and fresh asparagus, served open face on muffins and crowned with mustard sauce, serves as an excellent example.

SPRING LUNCHEON SANDWICH

2 tablespoons butter or margarine
2 tablespoons flour
1 tablespoon prepared mustard
1 teaspoon salt
1 cup milk
¼ cup mayonnaise
1 teaspoon instant onion
6 English muffins, split and toasted
1 bunch fresh asparagus, cooked and drained

Melt butter in saucepan and blend in flour, mustard and salt. Stir in milk, mayonnaise and onion and cook, stirring constantly, until thickened. Arrange two muffin halves, cut side up, on each plate and place a slice of hot cooked pork shoulder on each muffin half. Top with cooked asparagus spears. Spoon sauce over each serving. Six servings.

"Big, tender treat... American
That's what I like about LAMB"

"Lamb's our favorite for springtime holiday feasts. I pick a robust rack of American Lamb, roast it to a delicate brown, and glaze it with a tangy-sweet sauce. The men in my family love the flavor—and the satisfying servings of tender, young meat."

Orange-Glazed Holiday RACK OF LAMB (makes 2 to 3 servings)
1 rib rack of lamb
1/2 cup orange marmalade
1 tablespoon brown sugar
2 teaspoons prepared mustard
3 tablespoons lemon juice
Orange slices and maraschino cherries for garnish

Place lamb on rack in roasting pan. Roast in 325°(slow) oven 1-1/4 hours, or until meat thermometer registers 170 to 175° depending upon desired degree of doneness. Meanwhile, combine marmalade, brown sugar, mustard and lemon juice in small saucepan; heat, stirring constantly until blended. Baste lamb with marmalade mixture during last half hour of roasting time. Garnish with orange slices and maraschino cherries.

Bean Soup Proves A Real Family Winner

The call "Soup's on!" will bring the family running when they know the tureen holds bean soup. For once this flavor-packed soup of ham hocks and navy beans is sampled, it's not forgotten.

The hocks can be left intact in the soup if desired. Or remove the hocks, cut the meat from the bone and return it to the soup.

BEAN SOUP

1 pound dry navy beans
2 quarts cold water
2 to 3 pounds smoked ham hocks
1 tablespoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
1 bay leaf
½ cup chopped onion
2 tablespoons drippings

Wash beans, cover with cold water, bring to boil, reduce heat and boil gently two minutes. Remove from heat, cover and let stand one hour. Do not drain

Add ham hocks, salt, pepper and bay leaf. Simmer two and a half hours. Remove bay leafm

If desired, remove hocks, cut pieces of ham from the bone and return them to the soup. Lightly brown onion in drippings and add to the soup. Continue simmering for 30 minutes, or until meat and beans are tender. Eight servings.

A Diet Snack

Join the "in" crowd. Enjoy the cool refreshing taste of yogurt for a mid-morning snack or a watch your weight lunch. One cup of yogurt provides the same nutrients found in one cup of milk. It is high in calcium, has protein of excellent quality, and is easily digested.

Chutney Is A Familiar Table Item

This intriguing recipe is called Hawaiian chutney because of the prominence of pineapple, but principal products of California, almonds, raisins and pears, are equally essential to its appeal.

HAWAIIAN CHUTNEY

2 cans (1 lb. 13½ oz.) pineapple chunks
3 cups diced fresh pears
1½ cups dark seedless raisins
1½ cups brown sugar (packed)
1½ cups granulated sugar
1½ cups vinegar
3 tablespoons minced crystallized ginger
2 teaspoons minced garlic
1 tablespoon salt
½ to 1 teaspoon Tabasco
1 cup slivered almonds

Drain syrup from pineapple into kettle; coarsely chop pined apple. Combine all ingredients except almonds in kettle, bring to boil and simmer for one hour. Meanwhile, in large shallow pan, toast almonds in 400-degree oven for six to eight minutes until golden. Stir almonds into chutney; pour into sterilized jars and seal.

LONG WAITING LISTS

Mother Of Two Realizes Importance Of Day Center

By JULIA MALONE
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

Second of three articles

BOSTON — When a mother has young children and no income, there aren't many options. If she wants more than welfare aid, she finds someone to keep her pre-schoolers and sets out to support the family.

So Carol Benoit of Woburn, Mass., spends her days training for a career and three nights a week working as a waitress while sons Lee, 6, and Philip, 4, stay in a day care center or, in the evenings, with relatives.

Mrs. Benoit has to support the family. But she wants to.

"I felt guilty initially," she said, about being away from the boys. But, for her, a job has always been the only way. "I would never stay at home and be a housewife. . . I'd be miserable if I stayed home all day. I'd be growling."

And Lee and Philip? They love going to the day care center, she said. "They even wake me up on Saturday morning to go to school."

SHE LIKES the way Philip is learning to be more outgoing and Lee to share with friends at the center. She's impressed that they know such things as how to use a microscope and how the Indians lived.

She said it "would be heaven" if they didn't have to stay in day care the whole eight hours, but adds that the time they have together is more special than if they were together all day.

In talking with parents in the Boston area. I found a number of answers for why they chose day care. A wife works to support the family while the father is in graduate school. A parent explains that her son was an only child and needed play fellows.

A father says his daughter is in day care because his wife goes to school — and also because his daughter gets a head start on education at her center. A mother wants her son to learn to adjust to the world outside his home. Another mother has a psychology practice and keeps her child in day care during her appointments.

Deciding to use day care is one thing, finding a place in a center is often another. Parents quickly discover that day care is a limited service. A few industries sponsor centers for their workers. Profitmaking day nurseries are appearing, as are nonprofit centers. Some day care has been serving subsidized low income parents for years.

But nearly all centers have long waiting lists. And parents who might carefully shop around sometimes sign up a child before even visiting a center.

AT ONE CENTER the director told of a mother who came into her office to enroll a child. When the director invited her to look around the school, the mother said "No, thank you, I just need day care."

More discriminating parents spent half a day or more observing before they decide on a day care center. They often pick a center because of its "warmth" or because they like the teachers. For some, the building and facilities are important.

One way to avoid the search is to set up a day care center of your own. In Boston a chapter of National Organization for Women's day care task force decided to start a center. Enough parents took an interest to launch the Children's Center, Inc., in Brookline, Mass.

The Children's Center was formed by parents, and parents run it. If a parent isn't willing to help out, he can't join. Helping out means attending two meetings a month, occasionally working a cleanup shift in the house the center occupies, and serving on committees. It means building playground equipment or spending hours fund raising. (Tuition for a full day is $40 a week for each child, but that doesn't cover expenses).

Few centers are so parent controlled, however. At a federally sponsored center a group of Boston parents and teachers felt so alienated they dropped out. With paint, hammers and donations they remade a house in the city's Roxbury district into a bright and homey center for 30 children.

"Seeing large day care, we wanted ours small," explained Irene Burrell, one of the founders. "We wanted to know each chid and parent intimately."

She and four other women planned their center — "Our Place to Grow" — to give parents the respect that they found lacking at the government center where, they said, mothers were chastised for bringing children late or "for forgetting to put an undershirt" on a child.

"THE ASSUMPTION that the parent is doing the best job is necessary," said Estelle Coleman, head teacher at Our Place.

As day care centers continue to grow up in the United States, the still unanswered question remains: Will there be an effect — good or bad — on the day care child? So far there are no major studies and no firm conclusions from the experts. Parents do have some feelings, however.

"For my daughters the biggest change is how well they are getting along with other children," said a father. "There's a remarkable change in the older one. She's much more able to cope with things when they go wrong."

Said the mother of a 4-year-old, "He's talking more. His vocabulary is bigger, and his manners have improved. And he's correcting my English."

Diani McNeil has, like other parents, noticed her two daughters' knowledge about such things as flowers and animals. But she's not convinced that learning to share, for example, comes any faster to the day care child. "It's an age thing," she said, and it depends on the individual.

Mrs. McNeil is not so happy with some things her daughters are picking up in day care. Like swearing.

"You have to learn to accept it, she said. "It doesn't sound nice in public, but some of the children are learning it from their parents. That's why they (teachers) can't correct it."

ANOTHER PARENT said her son had begun sucking his thumb because a schoolmate does. A father finds that his daughters "may be a little overstimulated" by day care.

One concern in many parents' minds: Day care centers are often loosely structured. Children learn by playing games. What happens when they leave day care for more traditional elementary schools?

On the whole, parents interviewed responded that day care appears to have no bad affects on their children. They do, however, see some disadvantages for themselves.

"Half-day would be ideal," said a mother.

"I was always rushing," she said. "When I got home I wanted to relax, and they wanted me. I wanted them to go to bed, watch television, do anything that would let me relax."

So Mrs. McNeil has quit her job to spend more time with her girls. "Some people can do both. I can't." Meanwhile, the daughters will still come to school, but their mother will spend more time there, too.

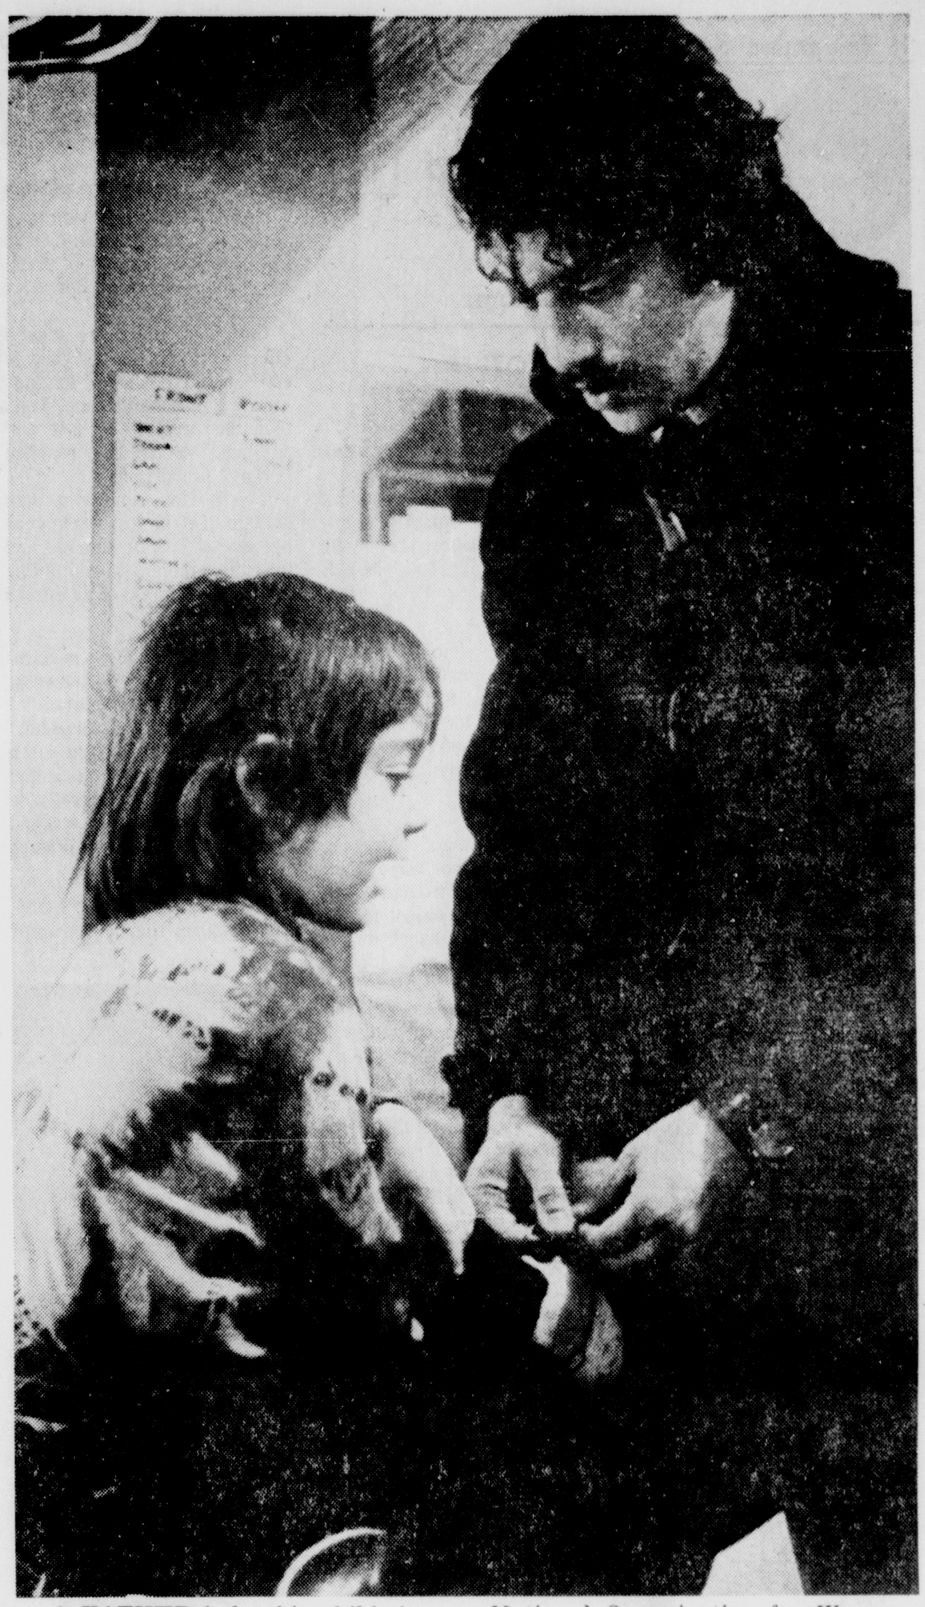
A MOTHER DROPS her son off at a day care center. He is fortunate to be enrolled because nearly all centers have long waiting lists. A few industries are sponsoring centers for their workers and some centers for low income parents are subsidized, but the need is growing faster than the facilities.



A FATHER helps his child tie a shoe after dropping him off at the Children's Center in Brookline, Mass. The day care center was started by members of the National Organization for Women and is run by the parents who serve on committees, build equipment, raise funds and occasionally work a clean-up shift.

Long Hair Look Is Still Liked By Men

LONDON (UPI) — Longish hair still is favored among European men but, like American males of the 1970s, the emphasis is more on well groomed hair than was true in the Beatle era.

Jock McNeil, better known to his London customers as "John Francis," male hair stylist, is convinced that really short haircuts for men will never come back into style. "You're never going back to crewcuts, short-back-and-sides, all that stuff, no matter what the parents of some of the kids might hope," he said. "That's just wishful thinking on their parts."

BUT THE boys with long hair have learned a lesson, McNeil said, and that is that caring for very long hair is not easy. "Not everyone has flowing, neat hair that'll fall neatly around the shoulders," he noted.

And so, "styling" of men's hair is increasingly the preference. "Blokes want to be neat, well-groomed," McNeil said. "They're dressing more flamboyantly, more freely. The hair, like the clothes, has to suit them."

IN PARIS, Rome, Copenhagen, Berlin and other European cities, the situation is much the same. Men are wearing their hair longer and fuller than in pre-1960 days, but styling it to their own personalities. According to Dr. Allen Metherell, a lecturer in physics at Christ's College, Cambridge, who is himself the owner of flowing auburn locks, today's male preference for longer hair represent's a kind of men's lib.

"The peacock instinct comes out in us," he said. "Women like it, and men feel they have something to show off."

Fiberglass Used In New Furniture

Fiberglass is being adapted to create outdoor furniture, since it has non-fading and weather resistant properties.

Round dining tables, matching chairs with vinyl upholstery on the seats, and oblong table and bench and two styles of coffee tables are included in the new collection.

Six Recognized For Membership

Six members of the Sausalito Woman's Club have been presented with plaques in recognition of their membership in the club for more than 50 years.

All had served on the board of directors, as treasurer or vice-president and on numerous committee. Mrs. Williams has known all the founders and all the past presidents of the club.

The award is the highest in the California P-TA for outstanding service to youth. Mrs. Planck has been a member of the P-TA for over two decades.

Male Nurse Gripes Because He's Not Treated As An Equal

DEAR HELEN:

Women want fair and equal treatment, but do they dish it out when the tables are turned?

Consider the nursing profession. Male nurses are usually paid less than are females, they aren't advanced as fast, they are kept to menial tasks — and when it's heavy-duty time (lifting, moving furniture, etc.) they must do all this for their "weak" sisters, plus their own daily rounds.

Women nurses are allowed to bathe male patients, but male nurses must have "watchdogs" (female) to see they aren't playing hanky-panky. Thus, we men are nothing more than underpaid, untrusted flunkies. And if we complain, the implied answer is, "Go get a man's job, then."

I like nursing. It's a part of the medical profession I qualify for, not being able to finish medical school. But I don't enjoy being downgraded by the same women who join N.O.W. and call themselves "second-class citizens."

This happens with male secretaries, telephone operators — in almost any area where women traditionally dominate.

Which makes me wonder: if women gain "equality" how long will it be before they make men their slaves? — MALE NURSE

DEAR MALE:

"Equality" should mean a cessation of hostilities and no more jockeying for the "boss" role between the sexes. This may even happen sometime — but it won't be day after tomorrow. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

I guess you might say I'm a sex object —two ways. I'm married (and any woman worth her salt is a sex object to her husband, so don't knock it, liberationists, and I'm a topless dancer.

I wish more people realized that not all topless entertainers are "bad" girls. There's only one man in my life — my husband. The customers expect no more than an eyeful. I don't have trouble with them.

I love music and dancing and, besides, I earn $210 a week. I come home (alone) to a wonderful man and our three great children. They're proud of me.

Most of the topless dancers I know are married and have children. There are a few girls who make it hard for those who don't deserve the reputation, but generally "topless" doesn't mean immoral.

As for women who get upset because their husbands have occasional business lunches at topless bars — can they truthfully say they don't enjoy being waited on by tall, handsome men? Looking isn't touching. These women must be so unsure of their own appeal that they want to keep their men on leashes. Maybe they'd better sharpen up their natural equipment and learn the fun of being a — SEX OBJECT

DEAR HELEN:

Four weeks ago I had a tubal ligation for physical reasons. Between our fifth and sixth child I had a blood clot, so the doctor recommended the operation rather than The Pill.

I should be relieved, but instead I'm having deep depressions and guilt feelings. The realization that I can't ever have another baby is horrible to me, even though I was told I might die if I became pregnant again.

Is this normal? — NOT A COMPLETE WOMAN

DEAR NCW:

Depression immediately following this type of operation (or a miscarriage, abortion, hysterectomy — anything that involves female "loss") can be considered normal because it happens so often. But, if depression and guilt linger, you should work these feelings out via discussion either with a therapist, your doctor, or an understanding friend. (Start with your husband.) — H.

Goods Damaged? Help Is Coming

By ARTHUR E. ROWSE

WASHINGTON — Unless they are postponed, new rules by the Interstate Commerce Commission will give some long sought breaks to owners of goods lost or damaged by commercial carriers.

The rules, which are scheduled to go into effect April 21, are designed to give consumers a better chance of having claims settled within a reasonable time. The agency admits that the problem of lost and damaged goods has reached "crisis" proportions.

It estimates that more than $300 million is lost each year because of loss or damage and that the problem is continuing to grow regardless of all efforts to reverse the trend.

Collecting for lost or damaged goods is perhaps the most frequent problem connected with the moving of household possessions. Claims are often ignored completely or rejected summarily by carriers who know the cards are stacked against their customers in such matters.

TRANSPORTATION COMPANIES know that few customers would take legal action over a lost suitcase or damage to property of only a few hundred dollars. They also know that few people realize that ICC rules make transportation firms liable for loss or damage regardless of any disclaimers.

The new rules order carriers to acknowledge receipt of claims, investigate them promptly and dispose of them within a specified time or explain the reason for any delay.

But claims must be made in writing and within the time specified in the bill of lading. Notations of shortages on freight bills or delivery receipts do not qualify as formal claims.

Under the new rules, the carrier must acknowledge receipt of a claim in writing within 30 days and make a prompt and thorough investigation.

The carrier is also required to make a decision within 120 days of receiving a claim, but a big loophole is left. If the carrier "cannot" dispose of the claim within that time, it must merely explain the delay to the claimant every 60 days thereafter.

KNOWING THAT many problem cases would still remain unresolved, the ICC has offered to go the extra mile. It has decided to seek legislative authority to settle individual cases, provided that it is given the extra funds necessary to do the job.

In making this proposal, the agency shows that it recognizes the lack of a satisfactory system for settling disputed claims.

"Such a process," it says, "would contrast markedly with the present practice of a party having to go to court, a procedure that is both costly and time-consuming."

To have the ICC resolving individual cases would not necessarily improve matters. The agency has frequently been accused of siding with the industry when controversies arise. But the latest actions indicate that the agency's attitudes may be shifting more in favor of consumers.

In a concurrent request to Congress, the agency has asked for authority to require railroads and ships to carry "adequate" cargo insurance to protect the public against lost and damaged goods. Motor carriers are already required to carry such insurance.

It may be some time before the ICC wins authorization to settle individual cases. Meanwhile, people contemplating changing addresses should start by becoming familiar with a folder entitled "General Information for Shippers of Household Goods." It is available free from moving firms.

Miss Gulley Engagement Announced

Mr. and Mrs. William Hart Gulley of Novato are announcing the engagement of their daughter, Patricia Ann, to Leroy Short Jr. He is the son of Mrs. Beatrice G. Short of Aberdeen, Md., and the late Leroy Short.

Patricia was graduated from Novato High School and is employed at White's Department Store in Leesburg, Va. She is the sister of Sharon K. Gulley of Leesburg.

The future bridegroom is a staff writer for the London Times-Mirror. He is a graduate of the University of Maryland, where he was a member of Sigma Phi Epsilon Fraternity. He has served with the Army in Vietnam and Cambodia.

The couple plans a May 13 wedding.

Writing Own Vows Tend To Bring Closer Ties To Couples

NEW YORK (UPI)—All those couples writing their own wedding vows. Are they doing the right thing?

They tend to have stronger marriages, according to a survey of clergy and psychologists, conducted in the New York metropolitan area by the Bridal and Bridesmaids Apparel Association.

"The couple that shapes its own service will doubtless have a deeper sense of their marriage being very much their own," said Rev. William R. Wolfe of the Paramus Congregational Church.

"One of the problems of our society today is that we don't have rituals that mean anything," Rev. Ralph E. Peterson of St. Peter's Lutheran Church said. "The wedding ceremony is an important memory. If you create something worth remembering, you are off to a good start in your marriage."

Father Michael F. Gallagher of St. Patrick's Cathedral said that until two years ago Catholic couples had been "merely mouthing like a parrot the words the priest gave them."

"NOW THERE'S a framework of 21 pieces from which they can select their prayers and find one that reflects their own personal moods and feelings," he said. "If they wish to be more creative, they can write a prayer that the guests respond to."

Dr. Nathan A. Perlman of Temple Emanu-El said that though many couples ask for changes in his service, almost invariably they like it when they understand its meaning. When they want something different, the Rabbi tells them to write it out. As an example, he cited this vow added by one couple:

"I dedicate my life to you and promise to be loving, loyal, devoted friend and partner forever. This commitment is not the words alone but from our soul which is one. This speaks not only of today but of all our tomorrows. I love you now and forever."

PSYCHOTHERAPIST DR. Peter H. Stevens is in favor of a great deal of variation in the wedding ceremony and believes couples should participate in its design, consulting with the clergyman. He noted that even in pre-Christian times people had some kind of ceremony to celebrate marriage, showing it is a human rather than a purely religious event.

The Life Of An Onassis— Cruising The Greek Islands

Imagine sailing among the Greek islands, dropping anchor at islands like Mykonos and Hydra at sundown for dinner at a quayside taverna, visiting ancient cities on Rhodes, sailing the Aegean and Ionian seas in the morning sunlight . . .

It also sounds expensive.

But yacht chartering in Greece can be a bargain vacation for a family or a group of friends, what with an increasing number of boats available at costs that fit a variety of budgets, especially in "off season." The total daily rental for a small yacht is about $60. Prices range on up to $500 for a deluxe 120-foot yacht.

Or you can rent a medium-priced yacht for $150 to $200. On a shared basis, this would cost a group of 10 to 12 approximately $15 a person a day.

The price of a chartered yacht includes a crew of anywhere from three to 10 members. Food is extra, though. But since Greece has one of the lowest costs-of-living in Europe, it seldom amounts to more than $5 a day.

Regular yacht charters are easily arranged through a travel agent who will deal with a broker in Greece or with an international yacht chartering specialist in the U.S. Small boat charters must usually be arranged directly with the owners.

Literature on yacht chartering in Greece is available from the Greek National Tourist Office, 627 West Sixth St., Los Angeles, 90017.

LAW DIGEST CLAIM

Advancing The World Order Cause

By LUCIA JOHNSON LEITH
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

WASHINGTON — "The Digest will advance world order and society. I'm confident of that."

Julia Willis, diminutive U.S. State Department attorney, speaks with enormous enthusiasm for her subject: the new U.S. government 15-volume "Digest of International Law," covering World War II to the present.

"The ideal purpose of the Digest is to promote not only the recognition and understanding of international law, but an actual adherence to it." Miss Willis said here. "It was this purpose that always kept me going forward on the project."

The Digest's chief author, Miss Marjorie Whiteman, a brilliant legal adviser in the State Department, retired almost two years ago. Miss Willis, now advanced to a new job — deputy assistant legal adviser for U.N. affairs — was Miss Whiteman's right hand through the long and sometimes arduous years of its preparation.

WHEN THE last volume, the index, appears — hopefully in late spring — Miss Willis will have devoted 14 years to the project. She spoke of the immense undertaking:

"The pragmatic purpose of the Digest is to record what the practice of international law is and thus elucidate what the actual development of international law is at this state," she explained.

"The Digest is not our (the United States') view of international law, nor does it purport to state what the law is. It only synthesizes what the law has been stated to be through U.S. practice and that of other countries."

The Whiteman Digest covers topics like: treaties; the United Nations; acquisition and loss of territory, including outer space; post-World War II settlement of territories; shipping (including nuclear shipping); communications (including space); the laws of war; neutrality; the use of force.

"What this Digest does really," Miss Willis explained, "is to mold out of the raw material of a quarter of a century of diplomatic correspondence and practice of international law, a synthesis of the principles of law as they have been evoked or practiced or applied by the nations of the world.

"Thus," she continued, "the Digest becomes a common tool for every foreign office in the world, which enables a country to adhere to or grasp the principles of law on which their relations with other nations are founded.

"A county can still violate international law. But it will have to square its actions with what's in the Digest, because everyone knows what's in it," she explained.

The Digest is distributed to all foreign offices around the world, to all U.S. embassies, and to all U.N. delegations. University libraries, scholars, law firms, and diplomats buy the volumes from the U.S. government.

Miss Willis recalled meeting two young African attorneys who were taking certain volumes of the Digest back to their universities so they could organize their international law courses around them.

FOR NEARLY 14 years, Miss Whiteman and Miss Willis worked seven days a week on it.

"We used to share sandwiches in the office on Christmas Day," Miss Willis recalls. "A book has a way of living with you whether you want it to or not. But our enthusiasm never flagged. The work was never boring."

A graduate of William and Mary's Marshall-Wythe law school, Miss Willis came to the Digest after three years of graduate work at Fletcher School of Law and Diplomacy.

In her new position as deputy assistant legal adviser for U.N. affairs, Miss Willis will advise diplomats in the U.N. section of the State Department.

Dwyer Feted For Service To School

R. Jeremy Dwyer of San Rafael received the honorary service award from the Coleman School Parent-Teacher Association for service to the school, its pupils and the entire community.

Dwyer's service to the school has been in the fields of ecology, survival, hiking, exploring and volunteer teaching. His survival presentation, teaching children how to stay alive if they are lost in a forest, has been made into a movie by the Marin County Board of Education. He also teaches sensitivity and expression to children, showing them how to express themsleves.

After four years of volunteering his time as a crossing guard at the intersection of Linden Lnae and Lincoln Avenue in San Rafael, the City Council replaced him with a paid crossing guard and a crossing light, assuring protection for the 50 Coleman School children who must cross the busy intersection to get to school.

He has also coached the flag football team at the school, taught first aid and been involved in San Rafael School board issues.

DID YOU HEAR THE ONE ABOUT . . .?

A shocked expression covers the face of Maureen Coy (right), who appears unnerved by the barroom conversation of Alan Marney (left) in a scene from "Boozer's Bash." The comedy will be presented by the Novato Community Players at 8:30 p.m. Friday at the Veterans Memorial Building for the benefit of the Cystic Fibrosis Research Foundation. Czech Trio To Perform On Saturday

The Smetana Trio, a young Czech ensemble, will close the Homestead Valley Community Association's 12th Annual Candlelight Series Saturday at 8 p.m. in Brown's Hall, Mill Valley.

Composed of pianist Josef Hala, violinist Vaclav Snitil and cellist Stanislav Apolin, the trio will perform the Beethoven Trio in D Major, Opus 70, No. 1, "Bergerettes" by Bohuslav Martinu and Dvorak's Trio "Dumky," Opus 90.

Tickets and further information may be obtained by calling Mrs. Martin Goldschmidt of Mill Valley.

Plea For Structured Classes Rejected

The Mill Valley School District board has turned down the request of a group of parents that one section of the district's new middle school be devoted to more structured classes than the unstructured ones already planned.

The board reaffirmed its original decision that the middle school be flexible and adaptable in each of its sections, or pods, according to Supt. James A. Collins, and said id did not want to single out any pod for a particular type of instruction.

He said the board felt this promoted unity at the school. A group of parents, led by Dr. Sheldon Wolff, had asked at the last board meeting that one pod be set aside for more conventional education because of misgivings it had about the proposed open classrooms.

The group, through Wolff's statement, said it felt education would suffer because there would be too many distractions from surrounding activities, it would be hard to get teachers who could handle the difficult teaching assignments and teaching by committee was inefficient.

The board, also at Monday night's meeting, approved the name of the new school as Mill Valley Middle School, Collins said. He said the name was proposed by a committee which surveyed members of the community, the teaching staff and students.

Trustees also appointed six teachers to a committee on district objectives, teacher roles and the evaluation of educational programs. They are Martha Robinson, Helen DeBerry, Nick Themely, Ronald Davis, Mark Wachter and Ruth Ann Osborn.

Kindergarten Registering Set

Children who will enter kindergarten in the Mill Valley School District this fall must register April 11 or 12 at any school in the district except for Edna Maguire Middle School, according to Dr. James A. Collins, district superintendent.

A child must be 5 years old on or before Dec. 2, 1972 to be eligible for enrollment, he said. Proof of age must be provided. Parents should also know dates the child has had childhood diseases, he said.

Parents will be notified by mail whether their child has been assigned to a morning or afternoon session, according to Collins.

Population Slash

In a letter from Sarah Nome on Monday's editorial page, doubting the feasibility of a rail transit system to San Francisco, a typographical error slashed Marin's population to 20,000. The county actually has more than 200,000 residents.

Guard Foils Burglary Try

Two young men who broke a glass door to get into Scotty's market in Terra Linda early Sunday morning fled after a guard ordered them to stop, sheriff's officers said yesterday.

The would-be burglars jumped a fence leading to the Bamboo Terrace officers, said, where deputies were called twice later before dawn by residents reporting prowlers.

The men were described as about 20 years old.

Novato Candidates Night Planned

The Novato chapter of the American Association of University Women and the League of Women Voters of Central Marin will conduct a Novato City Council candidates night meeting at 8 p.m. tomorrow at Marion School.

Eleven candidates for the council in the April 11 municipal election have been invited.

Angela's Bail Status Unchanged By Ruling

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— The prosecution in the Angela Davis murder-kidnap trial will not ask that her bail be revoked despite the California Supreme Court's modification of its ruling outlawing the death penalty.

Prosecutor Albert W. Harris Jr., an assistant state attorney general, said Tuesday he made the decision on instructions of state Attorney General Evelle Younger.

Miss Davis, 28, is accused of murder, kidnap and conspiracy in the Aug. 7, 1970, Marin County courthouse shootings in which four persons died. Testimony in her trial begins next Monday in San Jose.

She had been held without bail since she was arrested in New York in October, 1970, because a state law prohibited bail to those accused of capital crimes.

But after the California Supreme Court declared the death penalty unconstitutional Feb. 18, thus abolishing capital crimes, Judge Richard E. Arnason ordered Miss Davis released on $102,500 bail.

Last week the high court issued a modification of its ruling, declaring that those accused of crimes previously carrying the death penalty could be refused bail "if proof of guilt is evident, or the presumption thereof great."

The Democratic Republic of Vietnam is the official name of North Vietnam.

84 Strep Cases Reported Last Week

Streptococcus infections, with 84 cases reported, was the most prevalent communicable disease reported last week in Marin County, according to Dr. Carolyn B. Albrecht, Marin County health officer.

There also were 29 cases of gonorrhea, four of infectious hepatitis, three of syphillis, two of mumps and one of salmonella reported to the health office, she said.

Sausalito Board Sets Panel Policy

The Sausalito School District board has decided to elect chairmen of the board's five standing committees rather than leave it to the board chairman alone, Supt. Lawrence A. Lindberg reported.

He said the board, at its Monday meeting, agreed that chairmen of the finance, facilities, standards, organization and personnel committees would be elected rather than appointed. The finance and facilities committees formerly had been a joint group, but was split by the board Monday, Lindberg said.

Trustees also agreed that only the board will have the power to remove a chairman from a committee or appoint a new one. In accordance with past policies, chairman Delta Christ was empowered to make the appointments and removals.

The Sausalito School District board also:

RESIGNATIONS — Accepted the resignations of teachers Helena Richardson and Judith Feinglass, both currently on leaves of absence.

EMPLOYMENT — Voted to hire: Claudia Weidig as a substitute Title One aide; Larry Beauchamp and Kathleen McMahon as Title One Aides and Pauline Lea as a secretary.

LEAVES OF ABSENCE — Granted leaves of one year to teacher Lucille Depoli and five months, until Sept. 1, to Martha Morrison, scool secretary.

INSURANCE — Agreed to budbet approximately $5,000 annually to finance classified employees unemployment insurance.

TRANSFER — Approved an interdistrict transfer to permit Silvia Soloranzo, an eighth grade student, to remain in the district, even though she has moved to another district.

REPRESENTATIVE — Rejected a request from the Sausalito District Teachers Association to increase to two the number of board representatives empowered to negotiate with employee association. Lindberg now acts as the board's sole representative in negotiations.

Breakfast For Schoonover Set Saturday

A breakfast to boost John C. Schoonover's campaign for the Novato City Council and provide manpower for the Novato Creek demonstration project will be held at 8 a.m. Saturday at Sambo's restaurant.

After breakfast, residents may work on the creek project, due for completin by July 1, according to Carolyn Jones, publicity chairman for the Schoonover campaign.

Those intending to work should bring rakes, shovels, hoes and wheelbarrows, she said.

Persons planning to attend the breakfast should notify G. R. Greene, 15 Ramona Way; Mr. and Mrs. Frank Nelson, 5 Palmo Court, or Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Stahlbaum, 27 Lawrence Drive, by 5 p.m. tomorrow, Mrs. Jones said.

MORAL RENAISSANCE — This is a sampling of Caux Challenge literature, including "Remaking the World," by Frank N. D. Buchman, founder of the original Moral Re-Armament movement, and "Design for Dedication," by Peter Howard, current director of the worldwide crusade. A representative of the group was in Marin to herald its aims.

NOW IT'S 'CAUX CHALLENGE'

Moral Crusade Revisits Marin

By JAY GOODWIN

Remember those energetic, well-scrubbed young men and women dedicated to a quasi-religious crusade called Moral Re-Armament?

They carried their message of patriotism, optimism and international brotherhood throughout the Bay Area and across the country during the 1960s.

Well, remember them or not, Moral Re-Armament is coming back to Marin County. This year, the group will return with a less intimidating name — Caux Challenge — and a reworked mission — "moral renaissance." The new name comes from the site of the movement's world headquarters in Caux, Switzerland.

After screening a film for the Marin Motion Picture and Television Council in San Rafael, Smith paused the other day to speak about Caux Challenge.

"Our goal is to change people's lives," he said. "We can do this best by showing other men what we mean by moral renaissance. Not by preaching or holding up a Bible, but by the way we live."

By Smith's own admission, moral renaissance isn't easy.

"We deal in absolute standards of morality because relative standards just don't work. When each man goes his own way — being honest when he can and dishonest when he must — the value of relative standards breaks down."

According to Smith, it'u impossible to live very long without realizing that there is something or someone greater in the world than one's own ego. Once that realization has occurred, he said, it's logical to follow that supreme being's guidance absolutely.

A flyer from Caux Challenge stresses the importance of these absolute guidelines in contemporary society.

"There are absolute standards for human society just as there are for engineering or mathematics. It is because we don't apply absolute standards to our living that society is in danger of collapse," Smith said.

Such a collapse would be forestalled, he said, if everyone would lead a life dedicated to the four absolutes: absolute honesty, absolute unselfishness, absolute purity and absolute love.

"Before you live by absolute standards, you have to get rid of the garbage in your past. Being honest with yourself, in everything you do, is terribly difficult."

With that preface, he spoke of his own past.

In 1965, at the age of 13, he joined the musical arm of the Moral Re-Armament movement — Up With People. Through catchy upbeat melodies and imaginative staging, Up With People tried to communicate the musical message of Moral Re-Armament throughout the world.

"After three years," Smith recalled, "I realized that Up With People was preaching moral rearmament rather than living it. I quit in 1968."

After a tour of duty with the Navy, he returned to what he calls the "Christian revolution." He is coordinating a series of public speaking engagements, high school assemblies, film presentations and dramatic productions in Marin and the Bay Area.

Caux Challenge is neither a religion nor an organization. Rather, said Smith, it is a belief — a way of life — for those who subscribe to it. There are no "members" and no regulations. One by one, for any number of reasons, people have seen what moral renaissance means, said Smith.

"Once you've become honest and start dealing with yourself and others that way, you find it is only degrading yourself to ever by dishonest. I suppose you could say that leading absolutely moral lives makes good public relations, but it also feels right."

Absolutely moral life, to Smith, means no drugs — "Any person who is gripped by habit cannot live with a global idea for humanity" — and no premarital sex — "If two people were both absolutely unselfish, sex would mean more to them if they waited until they were married."

Criticized for its dogmatically anti-Communist teachings, the renaissance group seems to have taken a softer approach to Communism these days.

"The battle isn't between Communism and Democracy," Smith said. "It's between the Christ and the anti-Christ. It's between absolute good and absolute evil. According to the Communists, we are antagonistic toward them. We aren't. We are simply a threat to their philosophy."

With that, Smith gathered up his films and folders and headed off to his next engagement. He leaves no doubt that he believes what he wrote in a Caux Challenge flyer in 1971:

"By listening to God and applying honesty, unselfishness, purity, and love on an absolute basis, human nature can be changed, world history can be changed and new men nd nations will be created."

White Hill Program Approved

A proposal to increase variety in the educational program at White Hill School was approved last night by the Fairfax School District board.

The proposal, presented to the board by White Hill principal James D. Franklin, will increase both courses offered and the amount of choice open to students at the school.

Gwyneth R. McGee, district secretary, said the board also approved spending a maximum of $500 Franklin said would be needed for data processing services to handle the more complicated scheduling tasks under the new program.

The board last night also received, but took no action on, what Supt. H. Reginald Hammond called "very preliminary figures" for the 1972-73 school year budget.

The figures suggest proposed expenditures of $1,157,564 and income of $1,167,298 including reserves carried over from this fiscal year. Actual income was projected at $1,094,536, Mrs. McGee said.

She said the board will establish a priority list setting where cuts in Hammond's proposal will be made if they are required.

The Fairfax School District board also:

SUMMER — Set a summer school calendar opening June 21 and ending July 21. Summer school will be offered at both White Hill and Manor schools.

FUNDS — Approved an application for $2,300 in federal funds for material and equipment for humanities courses, primarily English and social studies.

EMPLOYEES — Accepted the resignation of Eleanore Nelson, a fifth grade teacher at Manor School, retiring after 23 years with the Fairfax School District, and granted maternity leave for the 1972-73 school year to Katharine Oakley, first grade teacher at Manor School.

MEETING — Adjourned to its next regular meeting at 7:45 p.m. April 4 at White Hill School.

Counseling Reductions Draw Fire

The Cotati School District board heard objections last night to plans to reduce psychological services for students.

Parent-teacher groups and individuals objected to plans to reduce psychologist Adam Wolf from full-time to working three days per week.

The board said it had no complaints with Wolf's job performance, but that money would not be available next year to keep him on full-time. Board secretary Miriam Horne said the district would save $4,000 of Wolf's $13,000 per year salary by reducing his work time. Parents called the move false economy.

Wolf also complained and asked that a hearing be set up with a state hearing officer on his contract reduction. The board balked at Wolf's request to have his full-time job automatically reinstated if more state money becomes available.

The Cotati School District board also:

CONSULTING — Approved a resolution calling for the formation of a consulting commission made up of school representatives as well as Rohnert Park and Cotati City councils and planning commissions to discuss potential growth problems at monthly meetings.

ELECTION — Named Maurice Fredericks board president to replace Bart C. Mitchell who resigned to run for Rohnert Park City Council.

RESIGNATION — Accepted resignation of Shelly Greer, kindergarten teacher at John Reed School, who will teach in San Francisco next year.

Sausalito Vetoes Houses On Ridge

The Sausalito City Council last night unanimously upheld a planning commission rejection of plans for a 204-unit single-family residential subdivision on Wolfback Ridge.

The council acted after listening to two and a half hours of testimony in favor of the project from developer Edward R. Fitzsimmons and five witnesses, including architects, an engineer and a geologist.

Fitzsimmons and his group argued that the development as proposed is suitable for the 160-acre property, is not in conflict with the countywide plan and would enhance the ecology of the area rather than disturb or destroy it.

Architect Edmund C. Heine Jr. said the development would benefit the city by beautifying the ridge and increasing tax revenues. He said plans call for planting of great numbers of trees in the area since only 2 per cent of the land would be covered with buildings. He said vehicles which venture off ridge roads and over the hillsides are damaging the land and said development would remedy this.

The architect also contended the planned subdivision was "a reasonable transition from the highly developed city to the more northerly open area."

In its report turning down the tentative map, the planning commission objected to lack of adequate road access to the development; lots smaller than 20,000 square feet, the minimum lot size permitted by zoning regulations (Fitzsimmons replied that only three lots were smaller than 20,000 feet and this was the result of an error in preparing the map.); absence of public parks and playgrounds, exclusion of 12 acres of land owned by Fitzsimmons, insufficient evidence that the project would cause no substantial environmental damage.

The Fitzsimmons forces, which came to the meeting armed with topographical maps of Sausalito and the ridge and a scale model of the proposed development, contended the development would have little visual impact on Sausalito since there would be no skyline building and would not be visible to 90 per cent of the city's homes.

Planning Director H. Eric Borgwardt said the city's general plan limits density on Wolfback Ridge to one dwelling unit per acre, although city zoning laws allow one unit per half acre. (Fitzsimmons is planning 204 units on 160 acres)

Attorney Leland Jordan said state law requires that development comply with both general plans and precise plans, such as the zoning ordinance.

Councilman Wyman Hicks who said he had been working with the city staff to determine if there were any way the city could buy the land for open space, said he could not approve the development because there were too many details which still had to be studied by the city staff.

Councilman Stephen A. Fraser, while praising Fitzsimmons for "the best presentation I have seen by any developer," said it would be "irresponsible for the council to approve the subdivision before preparation of a city open space plan is completed. (The plan is scheduled for completion by July 1 and will be backed by zoning by January of 1973.)

Fraser added the developer had shown "more than enough willingness to meet epery objection the city has raised" and said remaining difficulties "can be overcome."

Fitzsimmons said he would "go back to the drawing board and prepare a new plan which meets every objection the council had raised."

The council postponed action on a one-year moratorium on all subdivision and other agenda items to an adjourned meeting at 8 p.m. Tuesday in city hall.

Dixie School Hit With BB Pellets

Vandals shot at the Dixie School with a BB gun during the weekend, breaking about six windows, sheriff's officers said yesterday.

6 Aboard Boat Cold, But Safe

Six young people and a dog stranded all night in a small boat in the bay off Hamilton Air Force Base were found unharmed about 8 a.m. today by a Coast Guard helicopter and a sheriff's marine patrol boat.

Deputy Sheriff Ted Hughes, who met the boat after it was towed back to Black Point, said those aboard were cold and hungry, but unhurt.

An all-night search by the Coast Guard and the patrol began about 7:30 p.m. when Harry Fitzgerald of Novato called the sheriff's office to report that his daughter and five friends had not returned from an afternoon boat outing.

He said his daughter, Vivian, 16, and her friends left the Black Point Marina about 2:30 p.m. in his 17-foot runabout.

Today, the young people told Hughes the engine of the boat failed to start when they attempted to switch to the second tank of fuel; so they anchored about two miles off Hamilton Air Force Base for the night.

Hughes said the only one not shivering when the boat was towed in was the black Labrador aboard.

The other passengers were Timothy A. Garsva, 17, of Posada Del Sol, Loma Verde; David Terrevonne, 22, of 1201 Second Street; Creighton Beyer, 18, of 1112 Ruhlman Street; Frank Jordan, 22, of 1037 First Street, and Timothy Lepinski, 18, of 19 Haves Street, all in Novato.

Master Flutist To Present Concert

G. S. Sachdev, master flutist from India, will give a concert of classical ragas, accompanied by Shankar Ghosh on tabla, Saturday at 8 p.m. in Olney Hall of the College of Marin.

Toll Plaza Revamping Delay Seen

Construction of a new southbound roadway off the Golden Gate Bridge, already delayed for one year, could be further demoted under a new priority list of proposed projects.

Bridge engineer Robert E. Shields, ranking in three priorities 16 projects totaling $11.2 million, put the proposed roadway in the second priority category. The $3.7 million roadway would allow full use of the toll plaza, and the one-way toll collection system would be reversed to collect from northbound drivers.

The recommendations by Shields will be considered by the bridge district's building and operating committee at 9:30 a.m. tomorrow in toll plaza offices.

The committee asked for the rankings in case some projects have to be postponed because of heavy financial commitments to the district's bus and ferry system.

Shields gave first priority to $6.4 million in improvements to the span, including $3.2 million to replace suspender ropes and $2.5 million for needed repairs.

Third priority projects include $50,000 to light the bridge towers. No ranking was given a suicide barrier pending a decision by the board of directors on whether to proceed with this project.

Fifth Graders Set Shakespeare Classic

"Midsummer Night's Dream" will be performed by the fifth grade class at Bel Aire School in Tiburon in the Multimedia center tomorrow at 7:30 p.m.

Span Board Assures Senator On Bus Fund

A charge that it is going ahead with development of a bus rapid transit vehicle was denied today by the Golden Gate Bridge District.

Sen. James R. Mills, D-San Diego, three weeks ago denounced the district for budgeting $150,000 to develop a prototype bus powered by turbine on Marin roadways and by electricity on its own right-of-way into downtown San Francisco.

The bridge district's general manager, Dale W. Luehring, today assured Mills that the allocation was only to determine if a bus rapid transit vehicle would fit in the same 10-foot-wide tunnel as a train.

Mills, a rail buff, had objected that the appropriation indicated the district was proceeding with development of a bus transit system contrary to assurances district officials gave him last year that rail systems also would be considered in long-range transit planning.

Luehring, in a letter to Mills, also noted that development of a hybrid bus to run on a fixed guideway and on conventional roads would cost some $5 million.

The confusion arose from the description given the appropriation in the district's own publications, which said it was for "development of specifications for the prototype vehicles for a partial rapid transit system."

Bolinas PUD Hires Engineer

The Bolinas Community Public Utility District board has hired an engineer to renovate the district's water system, chairman Marguerite K. Harris reported.

Maurice Monson of Walnut Creek was chosen by the board Saturday from approximately 20 applicants to serve for one year at an annual salary of $10,000, Mrs. Harris said.

The 41-year-old Monson holds a degree in civil engineering from the University of California at Berkeley and is working toward a master's degree in business from Golden Gate College.

His last job was as an engineer for Wilsey and Ham, a San Mateo consulting engineering firm, a post he held for two years. Prior to that, he worked for six years for the state Department of Water Resources as an associate engineer for the state water plan.

Auto Critically Injures Girl, 7

A 7-year-old San Rafael girl was listed in critical condition today at Marin General Hospital after being hit by a car yesterday afternoon.

Maria Louise Melodia, of 558 Belle Avenue was struck at 4:45 p.m. on Mission Avenue near Mary Street, by a car driven by Jose F. Machado, 19, of 6620 Bodega Avenue, Petaluma, according to police. They said she had run into the street from between two parked vehicles.

She suffered multiple fractures and injuries in the accident, the hospital reported.

Johnson Coffees

Three coffees are scheduled for Elizabeth Johnson, Larkspur City Council candidate: Friday at 8 p.m. at the Lynch home, No. 1, Boardwalk; Sunday, 4 p.m. at 49 Chanticleer Avenue and next Wednesday at 8 p.m. at the Lewis home, No. 2 - 24 Skylark Drive.

Another Stabbing In Prison

The second San Quentin convict within three days was stabbed yesterday at 5:30 p.m. in the prison's special security section.

Inmate Frank H. Padilla, 36, was stabbed in the back with a steel rod while serving dinner in Section B according to prison authorities.

His stabbing follows one Sunday afternoon, when an inmate was stabbed with a bedspring.

According to Prison Information Officer Joseph O'Brien, Padilla was working as a special attendant in the block when a fight broke out and he was stabbed. O'Brien said a warning shot broke up the fight and three unidentified inmates are in custody as suspects.

According to O'Brien, prisones in special security do not eat in the mess hall, and must be served in their cells, which Padilla was doing.

Officer Keith Hayball said Padilla was convicted of auto theft in Fresno County in 1956 and subsequently of grand theft, escape and possession of a weapon by a prisoner.

According to Hayball, Padilla is due to appear before the adult authority July 7 for parole consideration.

Council Hopefuls Invited To Speak

Novato City Council candidates in the April 11 municipal election have been invited to speak at a Novato Chamber of Commerce luncheon at noon March 31 at Shipwreck Pete's.

The candidates will be questioned on city services and the tax rate, a proposed housing moratorium and the city's sign ordinance.

County Government Ombudsman Sought

The Marin family and children's advisory committee last night asked the county board of supervisors to establish an ombudsman to push action on complaints against the county government.

Secretary Donna Huckins said the group also recommended that Mary Brooks of Novato, one of its members, be backed by the supervisors for appointment to the California Health Care Commission.

BIRTHDAY QUIZ

By GORDON B. GREB

Try this quiz about a famous person born today, March 22:

ANTHONY VANDYKE (1599 1641) Flemish painter.

T F 1. This Antwerp merchant's son showed such artistic talent as a boy that he was apprenticed to the Flemish painter, Hendrick van Balen.

T F 2. By the age of 16 he was good enough to teach pupils on his own but recognizing his need to learn more, he studied under Rubens, assisting him on several paintings and engravings.

T F 3. During his youth he traveled widely, earning many commissions to do portraits, first for patrons in France and later for those in Germany.

T F 4. In 1628 he was made court painter to the Spanish regnet of the Netherlands, Infanta Isabella, and in 1632, became royal painter to King Charles I of England.

T F 5. The works of Vandyke are rich in remembrances of royalty but perhaps his most important contribution was establishing the tradition of aristocratic British portraiture.

ANSWERS

1. TRUE — Vandyke became an Antwerp painter's guild member before he was 19.

2. TRUE — Rubens portraits were forceful; Vandyke's more sensitive.

3. FALSE — His strongest connections were to England and Italy, not France and Germany.

4. TRUE — King Charles knighted him and gave him a pension.

5. TRUE — Vandyke greatly influenced the English painters, Reynolds and Gainsborough.

HOW TO PLAY

WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

You Have To Figure Out Which Side Most Dangerous

Most bridge players are city dwellers and therefore may not understand that some animals are more dangerous than others. It's an important fact to know, because even at the bridge table the animal at your left may be more dangerous than the animal at your right (or vice versa). The right way to play a hand may depend on which animal is more dangerous.

SPADE LEAD

West opens the six of spades, and East plays the queen. You need five tricks in the red suits, and you will therefore have to develop both hearts and diamonds.

Which red suit do you tackle first?

West has probably led from a long spade suit and therefore is probably the dangerous opponent. You should begin by knocking out the sure entry of the dangerous opponent.

TRY FINESSE

If West has the king of diamonds, it will not be an entry; you will finesse through it. If West has the ace of hearts, however, it will be an entry.

For this reason you win the first trick with the king of spades and immediately return the king of hearts. West refuses the trick, and you follow with the queen of hearts. This time West takes the ace of hearts. He returns another spade.

TIME TO HOLD

It is now time for you to hold up in spades. When East plays the ten of spades, you allow him to win the trick. East continues with his last spade, and you take the ace.

The timing is perfect. You take the diamond finesse, losing to East's king. No matter what East returns, you can take nine tricks.

DIFFERENT STORY

There would be a different story to tell if you began on the diamonds after taking the first spade trick. East would win the king of diamonds and return a spade. This would establish West's suit while he still had the ace of hearts. Whenever you got around to leading hearts, West would take the ace and cash his spades, defeating the contract.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with two no-trump and the next player passes.

You hold:
♠ - J 9 7 6 2
♥ - A 10 9 4
♦ - 3 2
♣ - 6 3.

What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid three clubs.

This does not promise club length but asks partner to show a major suit if he can. If partner has no major suit, he will bid three diamonds.

Singles Win Birth Control Device Round

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Supreme Court ruled today that a state cannot bar dissemination of birth control devices to single persons if it permits married couples to obtain them.

The far-reaching 6-1 opinion —with Chief Justice Warren E. Burger the only dissenter — came in a decision striking down a Massachusetts law.

The Massachusetts law banned distribution of such devices as the pill except to married persons through a physician or pharmacist.

In the majority opinion, Justice William J. Brennan Jr. declared: "If the right of privacy means anything, it is the right of the individual, married or single, to be free from unwarranted governmental intrusion into matters so fundamentally affecting a person as the decision whether to bear or beget a child."

The Massachusetts law was considered the toughest state anticontraceptive statute on the books but 25 other states have similar, though less stringent laws which are affected by today's decision.

They are Arizona, Arkansas, Delaware, Hawaii, Idaho, Indiana, Iowa, Kentucky, Louisiana, Michigan, Minnesota, Mississippi, Missouri, Montana, Nebraska, Nevada, New Jersey, Ohio, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Tennessee, Utah, Washington, West Virginia and Wisconsin.

The Brennan opinion struck down the Massachusetts law on grounds it violated the "equal protection under law provisions of the Constitution by treating unmarried persons differently than married couples.

Burger contended in his dissent that the Court "blithely hurdled" a state court's pronouncement that distribution of contraceptives only through medical channels was an appropriate state action for protecting the health of its citizens.

He saw the ruling as a serious invasion of "the constitutional prerogatives of the state."

A spokesman for the Planned Parenthood Federation in New York said, "We're delighted with the decision. This represents the striking down of one of the last primitive vestiges of state law restricting what we consider to be a basic right of all people."

Anderson Releases ITT Chile Documents

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Columnist Jack Anderson today released a stack of confidential documents allegedly chronicling efforts by International Telephone & Telegraph (ITT) to keep Marxist Salvadore Allende from becoming president of Chile.

The photocopied documents included accounts of meetings between officials of ITT and contacts at the Central Intelligence Agency, the White House, the State Department and the Chilean military establishment. They included several detailed reports recommending a widespread ITT effort to enlist other U.S. industries in Chile in a campaign to bring about the country's economic collapse.

Several of the documents were detailed accounts of the political scene in Chile from ITT representatives there, mainly about the possibility of a military coup to thwart Allende's inauguration.

The documents —82 pages in all —spanned a period between September and November of 1970 when Allende became the first avowed Socialist elected to lead a nation in the Western hemisphere. ITT has a $95 million investment in Chile.

ITT already is the subject of a congressional investigation as the result of another Anderson allegation —that it offered to subsidize the Republican National Convention this summer in return for favorable administration treatment of a big antitrust case against it.

Meanwhile today, Senate investigators prepared questions for Dita D. Beard, the ITT lobbyist who is hospitalized in Denver. They plan to question her this weekend.

Anderson did not say where he got the Chilean papers but ITT officials have said "many sacks" of their records were put through a shredder —and they supposed destroyed —last month to keep any more of them from getting into public print.

One of the Chile papers was an account by W. R. Merriam, ITT's vice president in charge of the Washington office, of a meeting with "our contact at the McLean agency." It was addressed to John McCone, a former CIA head who now is an ITT director. The CIA is in McLean, Va.

"He (the contact) is still very, very pessimistic about defeating Allende when the congressional vote takes place on October 24," the Oct. 9 memo said. "Approaches continue to be made to select members of the Armed Forces in an attempt to have them lead some sort of uprising — no success to date . . ."

An ITT spokesman said Tuesday that Anderson's charge that it had conspired with the CIA to block Allende's election was "without foundation in fact." The White House declined comment except to say that "We do not pursue a policy as a government of acting in concert with a private company in pursuit of foreign policy."

Fairfax To Proceed On Remodeling

The Fairfax City Council yesterday voted 3-2 to proceed with $7,647 in architectural services to prepare preliminary designs and layout for civic center refurbishing.

According to City Administrator Robert E. Crowe, Sausalito architect Donald K. Olsen will do the work, include site studies, layout and interior and exterior design.

The 90-minute special meeting had been called when the council was unable to reach a decision at its March 13 regular meeting.

Discussion centered on what the architect would be doing and how to proceed, with some of the audience — which included firemen and council candidates in the April 11 municipal election — suggesting that a decision be delayed, Crowe said.

"But the majority of the council felt the decision had been kicked around so long that it was time to decide," Crowe said.

Mayor Cornelis van Vliet and councilmen Lee Nelder and Robert R. Souza voted in favor. They were opposed by councilmen Frank J. Egger and Francis J. O'Connell.

The council voted March 7 to refurbish the 46-year-old city hall and construct a new fire station, accepting a $44,131 bid of San Francisco contractor Ronald S. Collosi to remodel existing city offices and part of the police station.

Cycle Passenger Hurt In Accident

A Mill Valley woman was treated at Marin General Hospital yesterday for injuries received when a motorcycle on which she was a passenger collided with a car on Shoreline Highway at Tennessee Valley Road about 7:25 p.m., according to the California Highway Patrol.

Michelle Toomey, 22, of Fireside Motel, received a bump on the back of her head, according to a hospital spokesman. Driver of the motorcycle, Thomas T. Beeson Jr., 19, of 314 Starling Road, Mill Valley, was not hurt, as was the driver of the car, Darlene A. Madsen, 24, of 150 Belvedere Street, San Rafael, according to the patrol.

Credit Card Try Leads To Arrest

Victor Wayne Frenske, 20, of no known address, was arrested yesterday in Petaluma on suspicion of possession of stolen property and nacotic paraphernalia.

Police said he was arrested at the Texaco service station, 523 East Washington Street, after he had attempted to use a credit car that had been reported stolen. Officers said narcotics paraphernalia and other items which may have been stolen were also found in his possession.

Frenske was booked into the Sonoma County Jail for arraignment today in Southern Sonoma Municipal Court.

Auto Stolen

A 1962 light green Chevrolet, California license ECZ912, was reported stolen sometime between 8:30 p.m. Monday and 8:15 a.m. Tuesday from the residence of Margaret P. Killian, 1825 Lincoln Avenue, Apt. 203, San Rafael police said today.

A San Rafael woman was treated at Marin General Hospital Monday for cuts and bruises suffered in an auto accident last night, according to a hospital spokesman.

SACRAMENTO ROUNDUP

Crippled Children's Funding Bill Signed

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —Gov. Ronald Reagan has signed a $1.2 million crippled children's assistance bill that he once vetoed as "inappropriate."

Without mentioning the history of the bill or its author's name, Reagan's office announced the bill signing Tuesday in a two-paragraph, 43-word statement.

The legislation by Assemblyman Robert Crown, D-Alameda, was vigorously opposed by Reagan last year but he changed his position in December.

He came out in favor of the proposal four days after an attempt to override his veto failed by only three votes in the Assembly.

Reagan announced then that there was a "deficiency" in the crippled children's program and declared more funds were needed to avoid disruption of services for this vital program."

With Reagan's support, Crown's once controversial bill easily cleared both houses. The measure appropriates the $1.2 million in addition to the $13 million currently available.

Crown originally proposed the measure last year after Reagan trimmed $1.2 million for the program from the budget submitted by the Legislature.

Crown argued that because of a lack of state funds handicapped children were being denied treatment and many counties were on the verge of abandoning their programs.

DEATH TITLE

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — State Attorney General Evelle J. Younger has titled and summarized a Republican senator's initiative measure that would restore the death penalty to California.

Younger, whose office labels and summarizes all initiative proposals, said Tuesday the measure by Sen. George Deukmejian of Long Beach was titled "Death Penalty. Initiative Constitutional Amendment."

Younger said the summary of the measure reads, in part, that the proposal would "provide that statutes in effect on Feb. 17, 1972, requiring, authorizing, imposing, or relating to the death penalty are in full force and effect ..."

WHALE BILL

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—The Assembly unanimously approved and sent to the Senate on a 60-0 vote Tuesday a bill intended to protect whales from extinction.

The measure by Assemblyman Leo J. Ryan, D-Burlingame, would authorize penalties of up to $5,000 and six months in jail for anyone convicted of selling dead whales or their byproducts.

BOND PLEA

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—Gov. Ronald Reagan is asking voters to approve a $350 million bond issue to make California schools safe from earthquakes.

"I just can't believe that the people of California would not pass such a bond issue with what is at stake," Reagan told his weekly news conference Tuesday.

Most of its funds would go toward making California schools earthquake-proof. There now are 1,700 schools in this temblor-prone state which do not meet legal earthquake standards and must be repaired or abandoned by mid-1975.

Reagan termed the bond issue "a health and safety plan" and noted California has been fortunate that recent severe quakes have struck when schools were empty, thus averting "great tragedy."

BUSING

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —An Assembly committee has killed legislation urging Congress to approve a constitutional amendment prohibiting busing to achieve racial balance in schools.

After an opponent of the measure argued it would only "muddy up the problem, the Assembly Education Committee rejected the joint resolution by Assemblyman Charles J. Conrad, R-Sherman Oaks, Tuesday on an 8-9 vote.

RIVERS PLAN

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—The Assembly Water Committee has approved a bill that would impose a five-year moratorium on dam construction on four north coast rivers, including the Eel.

The committee sent the measure by Assemblyman Frank P. Belotti, R-Eureka, to the Ways and Means Committee Tuesday on a 6-0 vote.

The bill directs the Resources Agency to complete waterway management plans on the Smith, Trinity, Klamath and Eel rivers by 1977. During that period, no dams or other similar structures would be allowed to be built on the streams.

ADULT STATUS

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —With some grumbling by its members, the Senate has passed another bill to amend the new state law which makes young Californians legal adults at 18 instead of 21.

The measure by Assemblyman Paul Priolo, R-Pacific Palisades, author of the new "age of majority" law, was approved Tuesday 28-1 and returned to the Assembly for concurrence in technical amendments.

Under the bill, a new young adult couldn't obtain an inheritance until he was 21 if the will was signed before the new law took effect March 4 and the document specifically stated the inheritance was not to be released until the "age of majority."

INTEREST

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —Legislation requiring banks to pay interest on Christmas Club savings accounts was passed by the Assembly Tuesday and sent to the Senate.

Democratic Assemblyman Alan Sieroty said Christmas Club savers were "unsophisticated" in believing they would receive interest on their accounts. Many banks pay no interest on such accounts.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Laughter Has Relaxing Effect On Person's Nervous System

Laughter has a relaxing effect on the nervous system and is said to improve digestion and well-being. Although we have no proof that a hearty laugh benefits the heart, it is conceivable that laughter lowers the blood pressure when it is high and raises it when it is low.

Laughter also is good exercise. When someone has a hearty laugh, the diaphragm shakes up and down and air is drawn into the lungs by means of long, deep intake and expelled in a series of bursts. During this time, 15 sets of facial muscles contract and the vocal cords come together and separate as though they were in a dance. In extreme cases, the body sways from front to back and an expert in hilarity may figuratively roll on the floor.

THE SMILE is a diminutive laugh and for reasons unknown appears in infancy. Baby may break out in a smile any time from the first week to the third month of life; the first laugh may be heard from three weeks to six months of age. Contentment, pleasure or recognizing someone warm and friendly may cause the happy response.

Aristotle referred to man as the animal who laughs. No animal laughs exactly like man. Monkeys titter and tickling a chimpanzee may be followed by a chuckling sound with wrinkling of the face. This form of giggling is not associated with anything ludicrous or funny.

BY THE same token, man is the only animal with a sense of humor. This is one of our most precious possessions and those with this trait are able to ward off the buffets of the outside world and convert them into pleasure. Humor helps conserve energy that would otherwise be expended in anger, pain, horror, fear, or despair. It is also a reflection of kindliness in contrast to wit and jest which generally are enjoyed at the expense of others.

10 MILES A DAY

R. writes: I'm a retired factory worker of 76. If I trained myself to walk 10 miles a day, would this exercise strength my heart?

REPLY

The heart cannot be strengthened like the biceps, but walking will make the organ more accustomed to exertion and improve the coronary artery circulation. It also will improve the overall health of the body. Ten miles is a long distance. Why not take it easy? Begin with one mile and add another mile every few days.

SALT AND WEIGHT

Miss B. writes: I can shed at least nine pounds a week if I go on a salt-free diet. So far as I know, my heart and kidneys are sound. Does everyone accumulate this much fluid in the tissues?

REPLY

Yes, but not every week. Excess fluid in the tissues can be shucked off with drugs that stimulate the kidneys to excrete the chemical in salt (sodium) that draws fluid into the tissues.

BUTTERMILK

G. F. writes: What does buttermilk do for ulcer?

REPLY

Since buttermilk has no fat, it has no curative value in ulcer, as does the milk-cream regimen. It may, however, improve digestion.

Sub Training

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Navy will begin training 87 Nationalist Chinese officers and enlisted men next week at its submarine school in New London, Conn., although the United States still has not decided whether to supply Taiwan's Navy with a submarine.

Events For Novato Fair Announced

Novato's Western Weekend Country Fair, May 25-28, will have a parade, a queen, a play, beard contest and carnival.

The parade on May 27 is expected to include floats, decorated vehicles, bands, majorettes, junior drill teams, pep teams, military and mounted units, according to Billie Garl, secretary-manager of the Novato Chamber of Commerce.

The deadline for parade entries is April 22 and entry forms can be obtained from the chamber at 1123 Grant Avenue, or Mindy Jones, parade chairman at 1924 Novato Boulevard.

Western Weekend directors reported Monday night that 28 food and game booths have been assigned to local groups, but two are still unassigned.

The Novato Horsemen's queen will reign as queen of the fair and the Novato Community Players are scheduled to present a melodrama on opening night.

The fair like last year will be at the east end of Rowland Boulevard, she said.

Bound Over On Grand Theft

John Martin Green, 21, of San Anselmo, was bound over to Marin Superior Court yesterday on a charge of grand theft stemming from an incident with an automobile in Fairfax March 6.

He was not held to answer to additional charges of car theft and being a felon carrying a concealed weapon after a preliminary hearing in Municipal Court.

Green, who is to be arraigned April 5, is accused of taking an Austin-Healey which a San Rafael man had parked in Fairfax. He reportedly drove the car to Kentfield, where he parked it in a woman's driveway, got out of the car and then was seen to place a gun in his waistband.

License plates observed on the car by the Kentfield woman were registered to Green, police said.

Rate Hikes Likely, Says PUC Chief

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Californians were advised yesterday that the state bPublic Utilities Commission is likely to grant some rate increases under the new price control guidelines for utility regulation.

J. P. Vukasin Jr., chairman of the commission, said the new rules giving the state agency authority to decide on rate increase requests "face up to the economic realities as they exist today."

Vukasin said some rate increases are necessary to insure sound, viable utilities.

"The new regulations will permit the PUC a greater degree of flexibility in coping with some of the problems we have in providing the necessary means to keep up with the energy, communications and transportation needs in California," he said.

The state PUC is now considering three major increase requests affected by the wage-price freeze. They include $77.4 million in Pacific Telephone Company rates, $15 million increases for the Southern California Edison Co., and $24 million for the San Diego Gas & Electric Co.

More than 100 other rate increase applications are also before the commission.

Hike Pledge Funds Needed

Approximately half the more than 1,000 participants in the Feb. 29 "Hike for Help" have turned in their pledges, and the Marin Charitable Foundation is giving the rest a gentle nudge to do so.

Mrs. William Masden, president of the foundation, a hike co-sponsor, said the money was "badly needed right now for a variety of youth-oriented Marin ptojrvyd." Edward J. Flynn, western director of Project Hope, said $16,000 had been collected. He declined to say how much had been pledged.

Mrs. Madsen said each hiker received a bank envelope at the conclusion of the 20-mile hike, and is responsible for mailing or bringing his contributions to any branch of the Bank of Marin.

Ex-Marinite Sent To Center

Judge Samuel W. Gardiner of Marin Superior Court has sent a former Marin man with a long record of narcotics and other arrests to the California Rehabilitation Center.

Committed for treatment of drug addiction was Paul Kenneth McSweeney, 24, who last gave a San Francisco address.

McSweeney had pleaded guilty last month to a charge of robbing a pregnant woman Jan. 18 in the Corte Madera Shopping Center.

4-H Council Sets 1st Horse Show

The Marin County 4-H Club Council has announced its first horse show and barbecue beginning at 8:30 a.m. April 9 at the Novato Horsemen's Arena in Novato.

The all-novice schooling show will include open and junior divisions. Riding will be in English and Western classes.

Library Friends Group Organizing

A committee seeking to organize a Friends of the San Rafael Library will meet at 8 p.m. tomorrow in the Pacific Gas and Electric Co. auditorium at Third and Brooks streets.

Robert W. F. Severin, temporary chairman, said it is hoped that others interested in formation of such an organization will also attend.

SPORT NOTES

Another Tough Job For Sports Editor

By RALPH CHATOIAN

It's time to polish up my surfboard, get all the mud out of my snorkel, clean the goggles and lose enough weight to squeeze my fat belly into a swim suit.

I'm learning words like aloha nui nui, about places such as Kahala and Kahaluu, and getting my taste buds ready for mai tais and maybe a little poi.

All this and baseball too.

My wife and I will be among the 87 Marin Countians making the week-long trip to Honolulu with the San Francisco Giants Boosters Club of Northern California. For my wife it will be a vacation. For me it will be work. Oh, the pain of such rugged assignments. How am I going to keep all that sand out of my typewriter?

THE GIANTS will be playing three games against the Lotte Orions of Tokyo, evening games Friday and Saturday and an afternoon game Sunday. Cheering the Giants on will be 274 members of the boosters.

Cheer leader of the group is Allan B. Murray of Kentfield. He's also the boosters founder, president and secretary-treasurer. Al left San Francisco International Airport yesterday to get to Hawaii before the invasion of the group lovingly referred to as "road runners." After this trip "ocean hoppers" would sound better. I guess Murray had to make sure all the needed rooms in the Ilikai Hotel are ready and he must forewarn all the chefs and bartenders of the invasion. Especially the latter.

The group will be arriving in Honolulu in two 747s, these baseball fanatics. "We thought we would only need one charter plane," exclaimed Murray, "but man, the response was overwhelming. We had to get another plane."

THE GIANT FAN club is the largest in all of baseball, numbering more than 3,000 persons in its fifth year of existence. The Hawaii junket is the boosters' second of the year and the National League season hasn't even begun yet. A 13-day trip to the Phoenix campgrounds just ended for 132 boosters last Sunday. And there are six more trips on the schedule, from San Diego to Montreal, for the Murray Merry Marauders.

The Giants Boosters group has been getting ink in newspapers and magazines across the country. Latest magazine article on the group is in the current issue of Sport magazine, written by one of the most knowledgeable baseball writers in the country, Charles Einstein of Mill Valley.

A 38-YEAR-OLD bachelor, Murray is an insurance salesman by trade, but is finding very little time this year to do any insurance selling. He was a jock himself during his school days, playing basketball at Tamalpais High, College of Marin and University of Oregon.

As for his followers, the boosters come in all ages, many past the age of retirement. But no Sun City for these hearty folk. According to some stories written about them, they really know how to empty a bar — of booze, not people.

ONE LAST NOTE: College of Marin basketball coach John Panagakis is sending out a plea to Marin County service organizations to help pay expenses to get star guard Joe Smith to the National Amateur Athletic Union Basketball Tournament in London, Ky., starting Friday. The school needs at least $150 in donations and is far short, according to Panagakis.

Seals Lose, Face St. Louis Tonight

The 36-year-old center scored the 100th and 101st goals of his 10-year National Hockey League career in Bloomington, Minn., Tuesday night to pace the Minnesota North Stars to a 4-2 win over the Seals. Charlie was quite a local favorite when he played with San Francisco of the Western Hockey League and later with the NHL Seals.

Tonight the Seals play at St. Louis where they've had little luck since 1967 when both teams entered the expanded NHL. So far this season, the Blues and Seals skated to three ties while the Blues added two victories.

Burns dimmed the Seals playoff hopes by tying the game at 1-1 in the opening period after California went ahead on Norm Ferguson's close-in screen shot. Burns' second gaol on a rebound later in the period put the North Stars ahead to stay.

The Seals, shakily in fourth place in the NHL West with 60 points, have only five games remaining. They remained one point behind idle St. Lous and two points ahead of idle Philadelphia and Pittsburgh.

California 1 0 1—2 Minnesota 2 2 0—4
First period—1. California, Ferguson 14 (Carleton) 3:27; 2. Minnesota, Burns 9 (Parise, Gibbs) 7:16; 3. Minnesota, Burns 10 (Gibbs, Goldsworthy) 15:31. Penalties—McKechnie (served by Hicke) 8:53; McKechnie (misconduct) 9:17.
Second period—4. Minnesota, O'Brien 3 (Hamson) 14:07; 5. Minnesota, Nanne 20 (Prentice, Hampson) 18:21. Penalties—Stewart 8:42; Reid 19:12; Mohns (minor and major) 20:00; Ferguson (major) 20.
Third period—6. California, Shmyr 4 (Carleton, Pinder) 4:33. Penalties—J. Johnston (major) 4:59; Smith (game misconduct) 4:59; O'Brien (major served by Mohns) 4:59; Reid 15:30.
SHOTS ON GOAL BY:
California 4 11 13—28 Minnesota 12 12 6—30
Goaltenders: California—Meloche; Minnesota—Gilbert.

U.S. Gals Win, Advance To Net Quarter-Finals

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (UPI) — The United States won two singles matches against Uruguay yesterday to assure victory and advance into the quarter-finals of the Women's Federation Cup tennis tournament.

Val Ziegenfuss of San Diego defeated Fiorella Bonicelli, 6-1, 6-0, and Linda Tuero of Metairie, La., downed Mary Pujiak, 6-0, 6-0. Doubles results possibly involving Sharon Walsh of San Rafael were not available.

The U.S. team, seeded second in the tournament, was scheduled to meet the second-seeded girls from The Netherlands today. The Netherlands beat Colombia yesterday, 2-1.

Indians Sold To Syndicate

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (UPI)—The American League baseball owners gave unanimous approval Wednesday to the sale of the Cleveland Indians to a syndicate headed by Nick Mileti.

Mileti declined to give the exact amount of the purchase price but it had been rumored to be about $9 million.

Approval of the sale of the Indians by Vernon Stouffer came at the second meeting on the question. The owners had delayed action at a meeting March 8 in Sarasota.

"We came in last time and said here's what we want to do and what we think we can do," Mileti said. "They (the owners) said here are things we think should be worked out and we said fine."

Mileti said he would categorize the requirements as "put more dough into the club." The original group added three more well-known Cleveland residents Wednesday according to Mileti and that "this helped swing the deal."

Added Wednesday to the group which already numbered six including former candidate for the U.S. Senate Howard Metzenbaum, were Dudley Blossom III, and his brother Bingham and Richard Miller, an attorney.

Lotte Orions Are Tough On Giants

TEMPE, Ariz. (UPI)—So far the San Francisco Giants have had nothing but bad luck playing exhibition games against the Lotte Orions of Japan and today they tackle the Milwaukee Brewers, another club they haven't beaten.

The Giants and Orions played to a 10 inning, 1-1 tie Tuesday. Right-hander Fumio Narita, a 26-year-old former 20-game winner in Japan, was the man who stopped San Francisco on four hits. He also struck out six batters and when he got through working his way out of a bases-loaded, one out jam in the 10th, a crowd of 1,586 in Phoenix Memorial Stadium gave him a standing ovation.

The game was called after 10 innings in order to allow the Orions to catch a plane for Los Angeles. The Giants aren't finished with the Orions as yet because they play them single games Friday, Saturday and Sunday in Honolulu.

The Orions scored their only run off the Giants Tuesday in the second with John Cumberland pitching. A seventh inning single by Ken Henderson, a stolen base and two errors enabled the Giants to tie it.

In the 10th, Fran Healy opened with a single and when Narita threw wildly past first trying to pick off pinch-runner Jimmy Rosario, he was in deep trouble. Rosario moved to third on a long fly by Ed Goodson and Narita followed by walking Mike Phillips and Jim Howarth to load the bases.

With the moment of truth at hand, the Japanese righthander bowed his neck to strike out Al Gallagher and then ended it by inducing Tito Fuentes to ground out.

On Monday, the Giants lost to the Orions, 2-1, as 36-year-old Masaki Koyama shackled them on five hits over the first five innings. He's the same guy who whipped the Giants 9-1 last spring in San Francisco.

A's Ponder Player Cuts

PALM SPRINGS (UPI)—The Oakland A's, in the midst of a four-game road swing to Palm Springs and Yuma, meet the California Angels in an exhibition game today as manager Dick Williams ponders over his first cuts of the spring.

I'll tell you this," Williams said earlier, "there are going to be some surprises when we make our first cuts." Williams plans that unhappy chore for Saturday after the club returns to its spring base at Mesa, Ariz. and Greg Schubert, both outfielders, are making strong bids to win big league jobs with the parent A's this spring. Hendrick and Schubert were in the middle of things Tuesday as the A's shut out the Angels, 6-0.

Kareem Wins MVP Honors

So said Larry Costello, the coach of the Milwaukee Bucks, who admittedly might be biased in favor of Kareem Jabbar, his 7-foot-2 center.

Today the players in the NBA agreed with Costello to the extent that they voted Kareem Abdul-Jabbar the Most Valuable Player of the 1971-72 season.

It marked the second straight season that Abdul-Jabbar has been named recipient of the Podoloff Trophy as the league's MVP.

Jerry West of Los Angeles was the runner-up for the third year in a row. The veteran guard received 44 first-place votes and a total of 393 points.

West's teammate, Wilt Chamberlain, the 35-year-old all-time scoring champion and four-time MVP, finished third with 36 first-place votes and 294 points.

John Havlicek of Boston, who helped lead the Celtics to their first division title since 1965, wound up fourth in the voting, the highest placing of his 10year career. Seattle's Spencer Haywood was fifth.

Abdul-Jabbar, pacing the NBA in scoring with a 34.9 average, is the first player to win the MVP award twice in his first three seasons. Bill Russell has won it the most times (5) followed by Chamberlain (4).

Now Costello hopes the big center will lead the Bucks on to a second straight title. "It's harder to repeat as champion than to win the first time," observed Costello.

Bicyclist Horwitz Wins Race To Olema

Mark Horwitz of Tamalpais High School won the Class A category yesterday in a bicycle race from Stinson Beach to Olema for Marin County high-school students. The 13.2-mile race was the third in a series of eight to be held this year.

The winners:

Class A—Mark Horwitz (Tamalpais); Class B, Tom Reynolds (Redwood); Class C, Mark Linker (Tamalpais); Girls, Terri Harrison (San Domenico); Team, Tamalpais.

PREP BASEBALL ROUNDUP

Rancho Edges San Marin

Rich Murray slashed a fifth-inning single to score Gary Disharoon and give Rancho Cotate High School of Rohnert Park its first baseball victory of the year yesterday, a 2-1 triumph over San Marin at Novato High School's field.

In other action involving Marin County Athletic League teams, Terra Linda won its fourth straight game by topping host Vallejo, 6-2; Redwood edged visiting Vanden from Travis Air Force Base, 4-3; Drake lost to visiting Riordan of San Francisco, 8-2; Tamalpais fell to invading John Swett of Crockett, 4-3; and San Rafael capitulated at Napa, 4-1.

Disharoon singled for Rancho Cotate to open the fifth, moved to second on a walk and third in an infield out before Murray's single. Murray also figured in the Cougars' first run by hitting a double, moving to third on a wild pitch and scoring on Marshall Brant's long sacrifice fly to center in the fourth inning.

Rancho's Bob Haas, with relief help from Dave Christensen, was credited with the victory. The only run off him was a fluke —he struck out a man in the first inning for what would have been the third out, but the ball hit home plate and bounced away from the catcher, enabling a runner to score from the third.

Rancho Cotate coach Jim Dougherty said, "We executed defensively quite well which cut off San Marin scoring. They threatened constantly — we just happened to be fortunate and got them out in tight situations."

For Terra Linda, John Loberg, Paul Berry, Mike Sabel and Steve Withers drove in one run apiece with singles. Withers also stroked a triple, and Sabel was the winning pitcher.

Redwood's Ross Secor hit a bases-loaded single with nobody out in the bottom of the seventh to break a 3-3 tie. Freshman righthander Ed Anderson pitched a four-hitter for the Giants. Mike Connor went two-for-two and drove in two runs with a single.

Tamalpais' Clifford Hall went three-for-four with an RBI in his first game since coming off the basketball team, but it wasn't enough. Tam surrendered two unearned runs in the seventh as Alton Hardy took the defeat despite a nine-strikeout performance.

STICK-SWINGING HOCKEY MELEE

Suspensions Handed Out For Fight

MONTREAL (UPI)—Wingers Wayne Cashman of the Boston Bruins and Dennis Hextall of the Minnesota North Stars have been suspended for three games for a vicious stick-swinging incident during a nationally televised National Hockey League game Sunday, NHL President Clarence Campbell announced today.

"In my opinion there is no difference in the degree of fault attributed to Hextall or Cashman and they can both be grateful that neither sustained or inflicted any serious injury on themselves or other players or officials," Campbell said.

It is obvious that the penalties actually imposed — two minors to Cashman and a major to Hextall— are quite inadequate for the very serious and dangerous fouls which they committed, which could have produced serious and even fatal injuries," he said. "That they did not is fortunate for all cocerned and is in no way attributable to any restraint exercised by either of the principals in the affair."

The suspensions took effect immediately following Sunday's game, Campbell said. Hextall missed Tuesday night's game while Cashman will sit out Thursday night's game between first place Boston and runnerup New York plus weekend games against NHL West champion Chicago and Montreal.

Seven-Run Rally Wins For Tars

John Kdder and Frank Pomilia slammed bases-loaded doubles as the College of Marin Tars exploded for seven runs in the seventh inning to defeat visiting Canada College of Redwood City yesterday, 8-7, in a Camino Norte Conference baseball game.

Kidder's smash drove in three runs and put the Tars ahead, 4-3. Pomilia's belt knocked in two more. The sixth came in on a sacrifice fly by Joe Caito and the seventh on an error by Canada's short stop.

The Tars belted five extra-base hits — two each by Mike Parnow and Kidder, and one by Pomilia. Starting pitcher Dennis Beuler yielded three unearned runs in the second inning, and remained virtually untouchable until partway through the ninth, when reliever Mike Johnson entered. After a shaky start, Johnson retired three straight batters to save the victory.

The Tars, now 3-2 in the Conference, will play Skyline College of San Bruno tomorrow at 3 p.m. on their Kentfield diamond.

The home of the pro football Rams was chosen as the site of the next pro football spectacular Tuesday by the National Football League at its annual meeting here.

The NFL also tabbed Houston and its Rice Stadium for Super Bowl VIII on Jan. 13, 1974. It was the first time that the owners had selected a city for the annual battle between the champions of the American and National Conferences two years in advance.

NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle said the Pro Bowl, the annual all star game between the two conferences that had been played in Los Angeles since its inception in 1951, would be moved to another city next year. The game will be played Jan. 21, 1973 at Dallas in the new Texas Stadium. Rozelle also said this all star game would be moved to a different city each year. On Jan. 20, 1974, it will be played in an AFC city to be designated later.

The choice of Los Angeles returns the Super Bowl to the city which hosted the first championship game between NFL champions Green Bay and Kansas City, the old American football league champion. That game was not a sellout, but owners expressed confidence the next one would be.

The owners picked Los Angeles despite a strong bid by the Miami delegation, which offered to substitute its local authority to intercede on behalf of the league in any legal battles. Rozelle was constantly harassed during the 1971 Super Bowl by a local attorney to prevent a local television blackout.

Today's schedule calls for individual committee meetings. Thursday the competition committee, which has been working on several rule change proposals since last week, will make its report to the owners.

Pro Bowling Tournament Set At Nave Lanes

Some 200 Professional Central California Bowlers will compete for an estimated $700 first prize Saturday and Sunday at Nave Lanes in Ignacio, in a 1972 PCCB tour tournament.

Three squads of contestants will roll 10 games. Each player will be assigned to a squad and will bowl at 4:30 p.m. or 9 p.m. Saturday, or 1 a.m. Sunday. Bowlers with the top 24 scores will then compete Sunday starting at 1 p.m. in double-elimination, head-to-head competition.

Nave Lanes, which hosted the event in 1969, is expected to accommodate some 200 fans. Free admission and seating will be provided.

Walton Unanimous Pick By Coaches

NEW YORK (UPI)—Bill Walton, the 6-foot-11 sophomore center who sparked UCLA to a 26-0 regular season record, is the lone unanimous choice on the National Basketball Association Coaches 1972 College All-America team.

Others named to the squad were Ed Ratleff, Long Beach St.; Bob McAdoo, North Carolina; Bud Stallworth, Kansas and Dwight Lamar, Southwest Louisiana.

Star Sprinter Meriwether Receives Tanqueray Award

By U.P.INTERNATIONAL

NEW YORK — Dr. Delano Meriwether, the Boston hemotologist who has coached himself up to world class level as a sprinter, yesterday received the annual Tanqueray Sports Achievement award.

Meriwether has won four of 11 major races against top competition since taking up sprinting seriously in July, 1970. In the recent Amateur Athletic Union championships, he ran the 100-yard dash in a record-breaking 9.0 seconds, but the mark was disallowed because of a following wind.

"I want to be on the Olympic squad," said Meriwether, "but I won't sacrifice my medical career to make the team. No matter how much success I've had or will have in the future in track, my family and my work in hematology will always come first."

St. John's '5' Wins Game, Loses Player

Not the university. The Redmen helped themselves in that department Tuesday night by defeating the Titans 94-78 to reach the semifinals of the National Invitation Tournament for the 10th time in the 35-year history of the classic.

What the Redmen need is help from the founder of the Tulsa, Okla., university, the renowned faith healer. St. John's star player, Mel Davis, suffered pulled tendons behind his right knee in the first half against Oral Roberts and doctors said it would "take a miracle" for him to be ready for Thursday night's semifinal game with Niagara.

BOATING

Cost Consciousness 1971 Boating Trend

If there was a trend in boating in 1971 that stood out above most others I would say that it was cost consciousness. For many people 1971 was not a good year, and there was a great desire to save a buck.

It also could be that many people of modest means have become interested in boating and they have to be careful.

So often you hear boaters who have to pay for some kind of repair say: "If I had only known . . ." and then express how lack of an essential bit of knowledge had cost them money.

An acquaintance of mine just recently had to buy a new suit of sails for his boat because nobody had ever told him the function of one rlatively short length of rope — the topping lift. This is the line which runs from the masthead to the boom to take the weight of the boom when sails are being raised or lowered.

If you don't use the topping lift (or you can use your shoulder) to support the boom on smaller boats, unnecessary stresses are put on the sail at certain pressure points. The sail stretches and loses its "draft" or pulling power. In sailboat parlance its "blown-out."

If you are a sailmaker by trade you might be able to salvage the sail. But generally you have to pay — or suffer a sail that has lost all its steam and takes all the thrill out of your sport.

There's no substitute for know-how in the game. It doesn't matter how we get it — but get it we certainly must. Here are some questions I've been asked:

Q. I thought chrome plating was impervious to salt spray. But the rail on my boat is pitted, bubbled and ruined. Why?

A. The chromium metal of chrome plating IS impervious. But the plating often has microscopic holes. These permit corrosive solutions to come in contact with the iron or other metal underneath. Keep your chrome waxed or otherwise protected if you want the maximum life from it.

Q. I have a new auxiliary engine on my ketch. It's checked every month by a mechanic, but half the time it won't start when I need it. Must I take a motor mechanic's course?

A. It's not a bad idea. Look up your closest United States Power Squadron. They offer just the course you need. Remember an auxiliary is always called upon under the worst possible circumstances. I've never seen one that wasn't damp or flooded when it had to be started. With a littla know-how you'll know what to do.

Q. I took the rails off my boat and had them replated. Now the plating is so thick they won't fit back into the sockets they came out of . . .?

A. You should have taken off the sockets and sent them to the plater too. Then he would have known the tolerances he had to work to. He would have turned down the ends of the rails or reamed out the sockets to accept the thicker plating.

Q. I tied up my boat too snugly. It rained for 20 hours, the rope shrunk and pulled a cleat off my deck — and a big chunk of deck with it . . .?

A. There are a couple of giant corporations spending millions in advertising every year to tell you about this problem. They sell nylon, dacron or other synthetic ropes that won't shrink if they are rained on for 20 years.

Q. My pal said: "That little bit of mildew will wash off" . . . but now there is a hole in my sail. How does mildew make holes?

A. It's a fungus which feeds on organic fibers such as cotton. But to thrive, mildew needs a warm damp environment. So keep your sails in the freezer or dry them thoroughly before putting them away. Synthetic sails made of dacron can be put away wet. Fungi can't stand the stuff.

Q. A trailer tire I just bought lasted only 104 miles before it blew. The store wouldn't replace it — they said I had run it underinflated . . .

A. This is something to watch. Car tires may be insured or guaranteed against road hazards, but trailer tires seldom are — mainly becuase they are so easily abused. Underinflation is the most common abuse. Most trailer tires require at least twice the pressure of the average auto tire. If they are run soft, they get hot from excessive flexing and blow out. The heat is also transmitted to the hub, where the grease melts, allowing the bearings to run dry, and then they get hot and burn out, too.

Q. Riders on my boat grab the windshield frame to hang on. They've cracked two windshields for me already. What can I do?

A. There is a kind of windshield frame with built-in handles which is probably sturdier than the one you have. Try it. Or, you might screw down a couple of transom handles in convenient places and tack up a small sign telling your friends what they are for.

Warriors Vs. Bullets In Baltimore

BALTIMORE (UPI)—Can the Golden State Warriors find happiness in Baltimore tonight after suffering the most ignominious defeat in NBA history?

At least they'll have some incentive. 1.) they can clinch a playoff spot in the Pacific Division by beating the Bullets and 2.) they have had two days rest.

Trying to shrug off Sunday's 63-point loss, worst in a quarter century of pro basketball, to the Los Angeles Lakers, the Warriors held a workout Tuesday at San Bruno. Coach Al Attles wasn't around. He was in New York scouting college players for the pro draft.

"Everybody knows what to do," said Attles. The Warriors have beaten the Bullets three of four this season but the Bullets have come on strong recently to capture the NBA's Central Division title.

Following tonight's game, the Warriors play at Atlanta Friday night and close out the season Sunday in Philadelphia.

Golden State has a 2 1-2-game edge over third-place Seattle which must beat Phoenix and Los Angeles in its last two games to have a chance to tie the Warriors and force a playoff. That's if Golden State loses all three of its remaining games.

Tomales Triumphs In Baseball

Tomales High School won its North Central League II baseball opener yesterday at Kelseyville High School, 3-2, behind the hitting and pitching of Jim Joyce.

Joyce, who went two-for-two in the ball game, hit a single to score Mike Kemp with the tying run in the fourth inning, and then blasted a home run to left field in the sixth to give the Braves the win. Joyce also pitched the whole ball game, allowing only four hits and two first inning runs. Tom Francheski also had a home run for the winners.

In other Southern Sonoma County baseball action, St. Vincent High School completed its pre-league season by losing to Clear Lake High School, 6-4, in Lakeport.

BOWLING TIPS

By DON CARTER

Early in your bowling career you will be taught the importance of a good follow-through, but it is something that can be forgotten as the years go by. Laziness sets in and a bowler starts letting his arm quit as soon as the ball has left his fingertips. In bowling as in most other sports, follow-through is essential. Make sure you haven't gotten lazy.

Petaluma Swimmers Win, Lose

Petaluma's Trojans set their season's mark at 3-4 with the split and Rancho Cotate dropped to 3-5-1 for the year.

Mike Caldwell was a double winner for the Trojans, swimming to firsts in the 100-yard freestyle and the 100-yard backstroke, the latter in 1:03.7 to set a new Petaluma pool speed mark.

Minnesota's Darwin Turns Into Slugging Outfielder

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Bobby Darwin's dream of becoming a major leaguer appears to be coming true at last — 10 long years after he started in organized baseball as a 19-year-old rookie pitcher with San Jose in the California League.

Now Darwin, who pitched a total of seven innings in two brief big league trials, is an outfielder with the Minnesota Twins and the hitting sensation of the spring training season.

The 6-foot-2, 200-pound native of Los Angeles is batting .381, has hit six homers and has driven in 18 runs in 13 exhibition games. With 36 total bases in 42 at-bats he has an .859 slugging percentage.

Darwin continued his slugging Tuesday when he hit two homers —one of about 450 feet and the other of about 400 feet —in the Twins' 4-2 victory over the Boston Red Sox. Jim Perry, tagged for both Boston runs in the sixth inning, was the winning pitcher.

Darwin's minor league pitching career consisted of stops in San Jose, Honolulu, Stockton, Elmira and Spokane and a composite won-lost record of 4151. He was converted into an outfielder at Spokane last season and batted .297 with 23 homers and 70 runs batted in for 86 games.

In other camps: Dock Ellis became the first Pittsburgh Pirate pitcher to go seven innings this spring, allowing three runs and five hits in a 5-3 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals. Richie Zisk's threerun homer in the seventh was the big blow for the Pirates after Bob Gibson shut them out for five innings ... Rich McKinney and John Ellis hit two-run homers and Johnny Callison hit a triple and two singles as the New York Yankees defeated the Chicago White Sox 7-1.

The last of three straight walks by 20-year-old Mike Ruddell forced home Deron Johnson in the eighth inning and gave the Philadelphia Phillies a 2-1 triumph over the Cincinnati Reds . . .Ed Kranepool hit a two- run homer and rookie Jon Matlack allowed one run in six innings in the New York Mets' 4-2 victory over the Baltimore Orioles.

Two-run doubles by Ron Hansen and Jose Martinez sparked a five-run eighth-inning rally which lifted the Kansas City Royals to a 9-7 decision over the Texas Rangers ... Billy Williams had two singles to lead a 10-hit attack that brought the Chicago Cubs a 5-3 triumph over the Milwaukee Brewers despite a pair of doubles by Joe Lahoud ... The Los Angeles Dodgers and Houston Astros played a 2-2 10inning tie called to allow the teams to leave Daytona Beach, Fla., for their regular training bases.

Buddy Bell, son of former major leaguer Gus Bell, had three singles and a double but the Cleveland Indians bowed to the San Diego Padres, 4-3.

Amount Spent On Special Work Uniform Sometimes Deductible

Amounts you spend for uniforms and uniform laundry on special work clothes for your job are sometimes deductible, depending on what kind of work clothing you must wear. If you are reimbursed by your employer, or if you are an outside salesman, the cost of special work clothes is deductible from gross income. For all other employees it is deductible only if you itemize your deductions.

The general rule on work clothing is that it must be a special kind required by the job and it must not be adaptable for use as ordinary street wear.

Other occupations must be considered individually. The important thing is the rule about street wear. It doesn't matter how dirty your clothes get on the job. For example, welders' and painters' clothes are not deductible. Nor are mechanics' or plumbers' overalls, even though all of the above are not usually considered appropriate streetwear. But the same clothing would more than likely be deductible if your employer required you to wear them with the company name sewn on as advertisement, for it would then be no longer adaptable as streetwear.

The cost of certain types of work clothing is often allowed as a deduction where the prime purpose is safety, i.e., to protect the body of the worker. This would include such things as protective gloves, goggles, steel toed shoes and hard hats.

Generally, the cost and maintenance of uniforms is deductible as an ordinary and necessary business expense if the uniforms are specifically required as a condition of employment and are not a type adaptable to general or continued usage to the extent that they take the place of regular clothing.

The fact that a uniform might be required as a condition of employment is not, of itself, sufficient to allow a deduction, as in the case of military apparel which replaces regular clothing. Likewise, the deduction is not allowable if the uniform is suitable for ordinary wear.

For most of us, the clothes we wear to work are personal expenses and not deductible no matter how quick they wear out and no matter how important it is that we look good on the job.

A Cautious Opening On Wall Street

NEW YORK (UPI) —Investors acted cautiously during the first two hours today as the stock market moved slightly lower in fairly active trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

Prices were mixed in moderate trading on the American Stock Exchange. Champion Home Builders was the most active issue, up 2 1-8 at 66 3-8 on 35,700 shares.

Gulf Oil was the most active NYSE issue, off 1-4, helped by a block of 147,400 shares traded at 25 1-4, off 1-2. Texaco was next, up 3-8, with a block of 100,000 traded at 25 1-4, up 3-8.

Another active issue was Eastern Airlines, up 1. Many airline issues showed strength after the Wall Street Journal said 1972 should be a good year for the industry. Among the stronger airlines were American, KLM Royal Dutch and Northwest.

Electronics and computers were mixed. IBM gained 3, Motorola 1 1-8. Softer were Magnavox, by 1 1-2, and Burroughs, 1 1-4.

By S. M. MARSHALL
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

The full dimensions of the emerging U.S. energy crisis have been masked by the recent slack in the U.S. economy and the attendant slack in the energy markets, a number of Wall Street pros are noting.

They believe it's also masking some important investment opportunities for the public.

A sharp upturn in business activity — which some economists now think is becoming more evident week by week — would drive the investment implications home "forcefully," in the opinion of Joel Fisher, analyst with Burnham & Co.

He points to the "imminent supply crisis in natural gas in particular," calling attention to frantic efforts by gas distributors to line up new supplies.

Many stocks have only partly discounted the implications of this over-balancing demand, several analysts feel. Fisher and some other analysts believe investors would be remiss in not getting a package of stocks in the gas industry, even at current prices.

For instance, Arkansas Louisiana Gas Co., a producer, transmitter, and distributor, is still — at $26 — well below the $30-to-$40 range it held in the mid- and early 1960s, when the gas shortage was much less evident. It's a pet recommendation of Anametrics, Inc., which cites it as sound for collecting a current dividend yield exceeding 5.5 per cent while waiting for probable capital gains.

Donald Fernow, analyst with the institutionally oriented firm of Janney Montgomery Scott, says the Arctic natural gas fields of Dome Petroleum Ltd. help make it "an exciting speculation." He looks for Dome to post record earnings for several years to come.

Consolidated Natural Gas, a distributor in the industrialized Ohio-Pennsylvania-West Virginia belt, has been stepping up its drilling activities in its traditional supply area, the Appalachian Basin, as well as offshore Louisiana. This, combined with plans to import liquefied natural gas from Algeria, impresses Argus Research Co.

Although Consolidated is not a "swinging" stock by any stretch of the imagination, several analysts like it for moderate gains combined with a current dividend yield of 6½ per cent at around $30 per share.

Fischer thinks a shrewd approach would be to buy a package of Phillips (around $30) and Standard of Indiana (under $70) for their strong positions in the gas industry in North America.

According to the National Petroleum Council, the yearly shortfall in supply is expected to grow to around 17 trillion btu's by 1985 — unless inducements are forthcoming for producers.

INVESTING

Over The Counter Explained

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. Could you explain the OTC market? I am very vague on how it operates. Is it similar to the exchanges? — R. G.

A. Yes, in that securities are bought and sold there; the over-the-counter market is similar to the various stock exchanges. The differences, however, outnumber the similarities. First there is a substantial disparity in size. Upward of 30,000 separate unlisted issues are traded over the course of a year by OTC dealers, with 3,000 actively traded issues included on the OTC automated NASDAQ system.

By comparison, the New York and American exchanges together list only 3,300 issues. Around 10 million shares change hands daily on the OTC, about double the Amex volume and half that of the Big Board. The second difference is that transactions are by negotiation rather than auction.

The computer based NASDAQ system, designed and manufactured by Bunker-Ramo, became operational Feb. 8, 1971, revolutionizing the loosely knit network known as OTC. Formerly a dealer had to contact several market makers in order to get the best quote. Now, with the new system, he gets simultaneous bid and ask prices from the various market makers in the issue.

To help prevent abuses, market makers must be willing to trade 100 or more shares at listed quotes. Simultaneous multiple quote print-out installations used by dealers and traders are Level II; market makers, using Level III machines, are able to enter new prices as well. At Level I, units print out only representative prices, but at this level the system is compatible with quote machines manufactured by Scantlin and Ultronic in addition to Bunker Ramo's.

Among the many advantages of the new system are accurate volume figures on each issue; OTC market averages printed every five minutes; a more orderly market; narrower spreads between bid and ask, and the capability to display multi-market quotes. This latter capacity could be a harbinger of the future, the first step toward a central marketplace, where all differences will disappear.

$6 Million In Building Permits

Permits were issued for building construction valued at $6,439,015 in Marin during February, according to figures released by the county chamber of commerce and visitors bureau.

This is a 92.9 per cent increase over the January total of $3,337,284 and a 10.9 per cent increase over February 1971.

The bulk of construction ($4,866,549) was in residential, including apartments. Only $182,023 was in commercial buildings, and the remaining $1,390,443 was for other construction such as public buildings and alterations.

Among cities, Novato led with $1,480,170 worth of building permits issued in February. Other cities: San Anselmo $1,358,463; San Rafael $939,983; Sausalito $301,822; Larkspur $260,825; Corte Madera $200,600; Tiburon $132,500; Mill Valley $80,852; Fairfax $42,980; Ross $20,000; and Belvedere $16,130.

In unincorporated areas, permits issued were for $1,604,690 in construction.

5-For-4 Stock Split Urged

Hospital Corp. of America, parent company of Ross Medical Corp. of San Rafael, announced in New York that its executive committee has recommended a 5-for-4 split of its common stock.

The stock split will be recommended to the board of directors at its April meeting.

Longs Announces Earnings Increase

WALNUT CREEK (BW) — Longs Drug Stores Inc., has announced a 29 per cent increase in earnings and a 17 per cent increase in sales for its fiscal year ended Jan. 31.

Unaudited net earnings for the year were $7,671,000, or $1.48 per share of common stock outstanding, against $5,943,000, or $1.15 per share the previous year after adjustment for a 2-for-1 stock split on May 25, 1951.

CAREER ENDS — Nina Gable of Fairfax, administrative assistant to the San Francisco district engineer of the state Division of Highways, will retire April 1 after 22 years' state service. She began her career in Inyo County in 1950.

Larkspur Argues Planning Report

Larkspur citizens last night differed fundamentally with their professional planner over what to do with reports from a January planning conference.

They also questioned if those reports reflect a consensus of a two-day conference at which more than 100 citizens thrashed out community problems.

In his first review meeting since the Jan. 28-29 conference, Sidney H. Williams of the San Francisco Planning firm of Williams and Mocine, said the reports would serve as general guidelines for the company's work.

Some residents, however, including Larkspur Planning Commissioner Leonard S. Rubin, said they would like to see the results condensed into a "coordinated policy statement" before presentation to the planning commission and city council.

The chances of that seemed slim as Williams made no promise last night, and the first planning commission hearing is slated for next Tuesday.

At issue are 47 "policy statements" drawn by Williams and his firm from 25 pages of single-spaced typewritten reports on the January meetings. They range from the very specific to the very general.

One is: "The present grading and rezoning applications for Little King should not be approved at this time and the land placed in a holding zone until clear future policies and standards are determined for the areas under construction."

Another is: "Development from Wood Island past the proposed ferry terminal shall be designed so as to preserve views and public access to the Bay."

During the two-day conference Larkspur residents broke into five groups, discussing open space, housing, transportation, commercial and industrial development and administration of city zoning and subdivision ordinances.

Some residents objected last night that the conference as a whole never reviewed subcommittee reports in an attempt to ceate a coherent set of guidelines. They said the 47 policy statements, divided under the five subheadings, represented each individual committee's work honestly, but not the thinking of the whole conference on any one issue.

They also objected to a sentence preceding the policy statements: "Therefore be it resolved that the following is hereby adopted as the official statement on development policy for the City of Larkspur." Residents contended this implied consent by the whole conference when this was not the case.

Architect and planner Norman T. Gilroy, a former Larkspur resident was one of those objecting. He promised a minority report in writing, "in a couple of days" saying he, as a member of the conference, did not agree with all 47 policy statements and others felt the same way.

Commissioner Rubin suggested that Williams distill the 47 statements still further, to a "co-ordinated policy statement" which could then be examined and modified at planning commission and city council hearings until a consensus opinion was reached.

Williams said the policy statements, after review by the planning commission and city council, would become general guidelines for his company during its work of updating the council plan and suggesting zoning and subdivision ordinance revisions.

No Water Shortage In N. Marin

The North Marin County Water District doesn't have a water supply problem as the result of below normal rainfall this season, but it does have a delivery problem, according to Dist. Mgr. Eugene S. Churchill.

In the event of a prolonged hot spell this summer, the district could have some problems, he said.

The district, which gets two-thirds of its water from Russian River, has an adequate supply, but the bottleneck is the undersized section of the delivery line from the river to Cotati, Churchill said.

The peak use demand during hot spells is expected to exceed the district's ability to deliver water, he said.

The district can deliver 10 million gallons a day from Russian River and Stafford Lake, but peak demand in hot spells is expected to be for more than 12 million gallons, Churchill explained.

"We could probably get by a two-to-three day hot spell," but would have to consider water conservation measures during a prolonged spell, he said.

An interim system, including two new wells at the river and a booster station on the Cotati line, is expected to meet the delivery problem, but it won't be complete until late July or August, he said.

The possibility of water rationing during the upcoming dry season has been raised in the Marin Municipal Water District, where reservoirs serve as the sole supply.

In the North Marin district, Stafford Lake Reservoir, which provides one-third of the district's supply, is at 80 per cent of capacity, Churchill said. And the district has 21 million gallons stored in steel tanks "that can be used down to about nine million," Churchill said.

The district contracts for 10,000 acre feet of Russian River water annually, but because of the undersized Cotati line, the capcity of the delivery system is only 4,000 acre feet, he said.

The interim system is expected to be adequate until 1975, when a new line will be needed, he said.

The last water shortage in the district was in 1961, Churchill added.

Court Upsets School Policy On Pregnancy

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—A federal judge has invalidated a school district regulation which makes employes take a three-month leave of absence for pregnancy.

U.S. District Judge George B. Harris Tuesday issued a preliminary injunction against the district as a result of a suit by Mrs. Amelia Williams, a social worker in the district's special program for pregnant students.

The district regulation said a certificated employe must take unpaid leave of two months before the expected birth and a one-month leave after delivery.

School officials said the purpose was for the safety of employes who must climb stairs and perform yard duty.

But Harris said the rules violated the "equal protection" clause of the 14th Amendment.

Candidate Forums Good For Voters

Candidates for election to San Anselmo City Council will square off at a candidates' night at 8 p.m. today in the Little Theater of Sir Francis Drake High School, at the same time their counterparts in Fairfax do the same thing at Manor School.

Candidates' nights, sponsored by the League of Women Voters, American Association of University Women, chambers of commerce and homeowners' groups, will come thick and fast from now until a few days before the April 11 municipal elections.

They are scheduled tomorrow night at Marion School in Novato, at Central School in Sausalito, and at Henry C. Hall School in Larkspur.

Many have been held already, and for the most part these have been quite well attended — but not so well as they should be.

THESE CANDIDATES' nights offer voters splendid opportunity to not only see and hear those who aspire to conduct their local governments, but also to ask them questions. For the candidates themselves, they provide an exposure to citizens' thoughts and feelings much better than can be obtained at coffee gatherings attended largely by supporters and somewhat inhibited by social politeness.

Seven of 10 cities in Marin County which will have elections have such events scheduled between now and April 11.

None is scheduled, and none has been held, in Belvedere, Ross, or Tiburon. We hope that lack is filled before election day.

These three cities also are lacking another form of candidate exposure which undoubtedly reaches more of the voters than the platform appearances: radio KTIM's "Marin Sounding Board."

Corte Madera, Larkspur and Fairfax candidates already have been presented on the "Sounding Board" series. Moderator Kitty Oppenheimer has scheduled appearances by San Anselmo candidates tomorrow morning, Mill Valley candidates on March 30, and Novato candidates on April 6. There will be none for Sausalito.

Time limitations keep the "Sounding Board" programs from being quite so exhaustive as the candidates' nights. But this service of KTIM is of great value to thousands of Marin voters.

THE LACK of public appearances by candidates in Belvedere, Ross and Tiburon is in sharp contrast to the campaign situation in Novato.

There, city council candidates have appeared at forums sponsored by six homeowner groups and by the Congregational Fellowship, and have the Thursday appearance sponsored by the League of Women Voters and American Association of University Women yet to come.

Nobody in Novato can claim he has been given no chance to see, hear and question the candidates.

THAT'S THE WAY it should be. And every voter should take advantage of these opportunities.

If there's a "Sounding Board" scheduled for candidates in your city, listen to it. If there's a candidates' night scheduled, attend it. And if there is none scheduled, see if you can start things moving to present one.

It will pay off in more responsive local government.

Vehicle Inspection Program Too Costly For Benefits

By EARL G. WATERS

Is the vehicle safety inspection program in California a costly flop?

In what was intended to improve safety upon the highways, the Legislature authorized the Highway Patrol to institute a passenger vehicle inspection program.

About 225 traffic officers composing 71 teams have been involved in carrying out the assignment. Floating inspection locations have been sited within the cities to get the greatest number of cars with the least impediment to traffic.

Cars are directed into lanes where lights, brakes, exhausts and other equipment are checked. Those not up to requirements are usually given mechanical violation notices. These can be remedied by getting the car fixed and appearing at a Highway Patrol office for cancellation.

The patrol has been inspecting about 1.5 million cars a year. This is slightly more than 10 per cent of the passenger cars registered in the state. But inspections have included out-of-state vehicles. They do not inspect trucks and buses, of which there are about 3.5 million registered here.

For this program the patrol has been expending about $8.5 million annually. They expect to reduce this cost slightly by using trained civilians at lesser salaries than the uniformed traffic officers. By May of this year it is anticipated only 142 officers will be on this duty, along with 142 civilian specialists.

But the cost is about $7.50 per vehicle inspected. At the rate of inspection, even if all were California cars with no car inspected twice, it would take about 10 years to check out every car, and cost nearly $100 million.

The program has been in full operation now for several years and it is time for review. The results reported would not seem to warrant the costs. This despite the fact the patrol reports over 60 per cent of the vehicles inspected in violation.

It would not seem to justify the expense because about one-third of the violations were headlamps. It is well known that headlamps are easily bumped out of adjustment. A car could have its lights out of kilter within hours of having them officially corrected. Even new cars are delivered with faulty lights.

Other violations found also appear to be of a type not significant in highway safety. Nearly 15 per cent were because of defective signals. Because many persons use the turning signals improperly or leave them flicking with no intention of turning, defensive drivers put little reliance on the devices. Still, these two light violations account for almost half of the total found.

Exhaust and pollution device violations make up over 10 per cent of other violations. But this has nothing to do with safety upon the highways. And the 2.1 per cent of vehicles with rear view mirrors absent is probably mostly due to a new law which requires not only an inside mirror but one outside also.

Those which more seriously relate to highway safety were found in only about 11 per cent of the cars. Poor brakes made up 2.4 per cent, faulty horns, 3.4 per cent, and bald tires, 5.7 per cent.

The whole report suggests that California might better adopt a system used in some other states: submission of an inspection report, acquired at the motorist's own expense, at a time of registration or renewal.

Three Headaches, Proposed Remedy

Excedrin Headache No. 1 — Busing.

Excedrin Headache No. 2 — President Nixon's non-solution; old busing (we'll keep it), new busing and delayed busing —delayed until well after the 1972 elections.

Excedrin Headache No. 3 —The Bagley Busing Law effective in California March 4, 1972. Regardless of presidential "solutions," congressional acts or court decisions, this is law in California unless it is repealed by the voters.

Remedy for Excedrin Headache No. 3: The Neighborhood School Initiative — 325,000 signatures of registered voters (statewide) will put the repeal of Bagley's Busing Law to the voters in November.

The Marin County Chairman for this Initiative: Alice Vipiana.

Youth Has Proved He's No Beginner

In defending yourself against Lynn McCarty's letter (March 16) you brought up a good point — it is usually unwise to put a beginning apprentice in charge of a shop. However, it is fortunate that this reasoning doesn't apply to Joe Franaszek's want of working within the system. Please, sir, examine carefully his education and his record of working for and in the system. He is no beginning apprentice — right or wrong, here is one knowledgeable human being.

Know your enemies, and if they aren't your enemies, know why they aren't.

Time To Consider Conserving Water

This letter has reference to the March 17 front page article in the I-J which advances the possibility that rationing of water in Marin County may be necessary this year, probably starting about May 1.

It seems to me that rather than thinking "rationing" we should instead finally face up to the necessity of "conserving" a precious asset and begin to reduce wasteful consumption of water. Actually, we should have started years ago, and the practice of more careful use of a valued resource should be an every-day habit, not simply in response to an emergency situation.

We have arrived at our present position primarily because we have been encouraged for years to believe that our supply of fresh water is inexhaustible, so long as we are willing to reach out for other than local sources (unfortunately ever more distant, and to the ecological detriment of other areas). Now that we no longer have so simple a solution, we should recognize the importance of using water more carefully.

For instance, we do not need to wash off porches, patios and driveways, or hose off our automobiles, or take long, therapeutic shower baths. We can have more drought-resistant plants in our gardens, and save in many other ways. We can also, of course, have a water rate structure which would discourage, rather than encourage, greater use.

To sum up, we should no longer consider that it is a good thing to have an ever-increasing per capita consumption rate — but, to the contrary, our goal should be to bring about a reduction of the per capita rate, whether or not we are in a "dry year."

In Marin we are really fortunate to have the water supply situation we now have. With "conservation" effort plus good water and waste-disposal management, we should be able to avoid thinking in terms of "rationing," which is a negative term at best, implying a temporary situation and one which offers no solution for the long term.

Price Tag On Pollution Cleanup Shows Need For Reassessment

(Reprinted from Oakland Tribune)

In the early stages of this nation's newfound environmental awareness, attention centered on the alleged magnitude of the problem, and there was precious little concern for practical solutions, particularly for the costs thereof.

It was — and still is — fashionable to assign "big business" the whipping boy role and to suggest the country's environmental ills could be corrected overnight if the industrial giants would just do a better job of abating the air and water pollution caused by their manufacturing efforts.

But now that some price tags are being attached to the environment improvement package, such simplistic solutions are found to be out of order. It appears, in fact, that the direct and immediate economic effect of major antipollution efforts, as called for by the environmental purists, would prove catastrophic to many thousands of small firms and individual families.

THE FIRST COMPREHENSIVE federal government attempt to assess the impact of antipollution efforts has found that to clean up smokestack emissions and discharges into streams, lakes and oceans will cause the closing of hundreds of small factories, put as many as 125,000 persons out of work, raise prices and seriously slow the nation's economic growth.

The report was a joint effort by the Environmental Protection Agency, the President's Council on Environmental Quality and the Commerce Department.

While the bigger corporations are in a position to survive the antipollution costs, the study found the smaller ones won't have the resources available and will have to shut down instead.

THE REPORT DID NOT attempt to assess the economic advantages of the hoped-for antipollution efforts, and this seems to be the next requirement.

For before we go much further, it would seem necessary to determine the exact need, and thus the exact effect of cleaning up all the air and all the water . . .

It is time to define that which is harmful and to devote all our energies and attention —and our money — to its elimination.

Busing Issue Actually Unifies Whites, Blacks For Better Schools

WASHINGTON — Rarely in American politics have so many had their views so distorted by so few as on this busing issue.

There are three grievous misrepresentations of majority opinion in the nation which are being widely circulated. They are false. They are harmful.

One distortion:

"The Florida score sheet indicates that a majority of the voters were united on just one issue — opposition to school busing," says the New York Times.

THIS IS SIMPLY not true. The score sheet shows that a great majority of Florida voters are united on two intimately related issues and the meaning of the voting emerges only when the two are put together.

They voted by a decisive majority (79 per cent) against any return to school segregation and in favor of equal-quality education for all.

It isn't public opinion which is disunited; it is political opinion about public opinion which has disunited. It is mostly the so-called liberals, elitist politicians and commentators who cry disunity when there is no disunity.

THE SECOND DISTORTION is that there is in the nation today "a profoundly split collective personality on the matters of race and school," as the Washington Post says.

This is simply not true. The evidence is just the opposite. A special Gallup Poll for Newsweek shows that, nationwide, the American people (69 per cent) do not want compulsory busing away from their neighborhood schools and do (66 per cent) want to press forward to end the old dual segregated school system.

The accuracy of the Gallup findings is demonstrated by the Florida referenda which shows the same unity of view with even stronger support for equal educational opportunity.

THE THIRD grievous distortion is: The Congressional Black Caucus untruthfully called those who oppose out-of-neighborhood busing "racists" and declared that these "racists" must not be allowed to formulate our policy in education.

But the evidence from the Florida referenda, the evidence from the Gallup Poll, the evidence from Michigan and elsewhere in the nation proves conclusively that those Americans who are against enforced, long-distance busing are not racists, that they strongly support removing the last vestiges of minority discrimination in education.

Note that while the 13 members of the Congressional Black Caucus want busing, the rank-and-file elite of black leadership (some 2,000 of them at the Gary, Ind., all-black convention) voted to condemn busing.

THE FACTS ARE VIVID and should now be beyond dispute:

1—The antibusing issue is not dividing the country. It is uniting the country. It is those who cry disunity when there is little disunity who are trying to divide the country.

2—On race and busing most Americans show they want two things, not one — and that is what is radiantly significant. They want to prevent compulsory out-of-neighborhood busing and they want to put more money into creating equal-quality schools for all.

3—These two goals are not racial in motivation and very few of those who seek them are racists.

As William Raspberry, a Washington Post columnist who happens to be black, puts it: "To send black children chasing to hell and gone behind white children is wrong and psychologically destructive."

Let's put our energy, money and newfound unity behind getting better education for all in a desegregated school system.

Survivors Of Buffalo Creek Find Little To Comfort Them

AMHERSTDALE, W.V. — Charlie Cowan sits in his gas station across what is left of the road from the big mine at Amherstdale. Outside, the rain still falls steadily on Buffalo Creek Valley, and the only bright spots in the grayness and mud are the slickers and hard hats and earth-moving equipment of the men ordered in to clean up after the great slag-pile dam gave way at the head of the creek and flooded the valley.

They are bright spots to the eye, their irridescent yellows and oranges busy in the rain, but there is nothing to cheer up the mind. So far their shovels and bulldozers have uncovered 117 bodies in the length of the valley, and all but three have been identified. The figures may change in the next few days, but not much. Buffalo Creek Valley, where 15 towns of more than 4,000 miners and dependents lived till those last days of February, is dead today.

The few signs of life are the workmen, the policemen screening out sightseers and, of course, the survivors who have come back to work at mines like Amherst No. 1, which seems to be producing full-blast despite what has happened. And here in his service station sits Charlie Cowan, who has survived and somehow emerged as an ombudsman for all his neighbors' complaints about what is happening in the wake of the flood.

A WOMAN and her son, who has come back from Ohio to see if he could help her, put their names on a list of those seeking legal aid. Suits against the mining company, the insurance companies, and apparently the government itself are going to be as numerous as the houses scattered like twigs, the hundreds of automobiles pounded into steel pulp — and the bodies.

Most of the houses, the ones swept far downstream and those still cockeyed on their own foundations, have been marked by the workmen with big yellow Xs. That means they are condemned to be bulldozed away and destroyed. But many of those who lived in them think they are still livable, and prefer them to the mobile homes provided by the federal government.

Cowan tells about the man who went away from his damaged home for a couple of hours, leaving a motorcycle on the porch. When he came back the house was destroyed and in a pile, the motorcycle with it.

Cowan is a strong black man, friendly and outspoken. He is indignant about such haste. He recalls that before this great flood, one of the many times when there was a mudslide from a strip mine, a man's house was damaged and he asked the state to condemn it so he could collect damages. But then the state denied it had the authority. Now it denies the householders have any authority to stop condemnation.

IN COWAN'S OPINION, politics is pushing the workmen. He says Gov. Arch A. Moore Jr. wants to hurry and complete a new road up the valley. The implication is that the governor wants a showpiece project to domonstrate his concern for the miners before this spring's primary election and his expected confrontation with Sec. of State John D. Rockefeller IV in the fall.

It is true that Moore's reputation is pro-mining companies, and that Rockefeller and others have challenged him strongly on this. Cowan's opinion is no angrier, and perhaps more informed, than anybody else's in the neighborhood. Everyone involved is blaming everyone else in the disaster. Not only politics but many millions of dollars in claims may ride on parallel investigations now proceeding. Accusing fingers point around in a circle.

Meanwhile, the survivors have spread to live with relatives elswhere, or in the government mobile homes which are available rent-free for a year. They have no belongings but what has been distributed by relief agencies. The salvation Army is passing out 1,000 free Bibles. In Williamson, 50 crooked miles away on the Kentucky line, minor stars of "Grand Ole Opry" did a 24-hour marathon benefit concert over the week end. Charlie Cowan makes his notes and phone calls.

THERE IS LARGE talk about rebuilding the valley as a series of model towns.

But as this is written, only the railroad line to the operating mines has been rebuilt. The rain is still falling and the smoke from bulldozed piles of debris rises into the clouds. The high red-and-black-streaked dam at the head of the creek still leaks black acid water from the deep gash that turned loose the flood. And in the hollows that finger away from Buffalo Creek, across the ridge in the next valley and the next, the water rises behind more than 100 other makeshift dams, above other creeks and coal camps with names you never heard of. A month ago, nobody had heard of Buffalo Creek, either.

Dangers Of East Blithedale Ignored By Mill Valley Officials

Twice a day I motor my way along East Blithedale Avenue in Mill Valley and twice a day I find myself wondering why more people aren't killed or maimed.

By any standards, it's an atrocious stretch of roadway. Cars, at times, pass within inches of each other. Bicyclists weave in and out. Dogs unexpectedly explode into traffic from behind parked cars.

Someday, one of those dogs will be a child. Someday, one of those bicyclists will weave the wrong way and find himself between two cars passing within inches of each other.

It doesn't have to continue, but it probably will — that is, until someone is seriously injured and the city council decides it's time to act.

ABOUT SIX OR SEVEN years ago, the city council did attempt to reduce the hazards by eliminating parking. A plan was drafted but was rejected amid cries of protest from some East Blithedale residents.

Meanwhile, the situation continues to worsen as more and more cars and bicycles use the street.

Surely someone at city hall can come up with a solution. Maybe even a compromise. Maybe parking could be restricted to night-time hours. Maybe parking could be limited to one space every 50 feet.

Not only would limited parking improve the flow of traffic, but it would provide drivers with roadside vision now blocked by parked cars.

THE CITY HAS decided on a plan to reroute some traffic from East Blithedale along Camino Alto to Miller Avenue.

While this will reduce traffic on Blithedale, it won't do much to improve safety.

With election less than a month away, and three seats up for grabs, one can only hope the six candidates will attempt to speak to this issue.

However, I doubt it.

It's safer politically for the candidates to continue bombarding us with their promises of "decreasing taxes and improving services."

EVERY NOW and then, however, the little people of the world do score a victory.

Being somewhat skeptical of the 59 cents per pound price, she asked the friendly butcher to trim the fat from the one she had selected.

By the time he finished trimming, the corned beef was only a fraction of its original size.

Dixie School Experiment To Continue

The Dixie School District board has approved continuation of an experimental program offering students more electives and more choice in the two junior high schools.

Supt. Clifford W. Campbell said the program, instituted this school year, modified former policy of routing all students through the same basic sampling of courses.

In the experiental program, basic courses are still required, but students are offered more elective courses and given greater opportunity to select which they want to take.

Campbell said the board Tuesday night also indicated that it wanted to offer an extra voluntary class period for electives for students who opt for music and foreign language programs.

The two elective programs are two-year offerings, and students taking both may not be able to take other electives — a situation the board said it wished to prevent, Campbell said.

The Dixie School District Board also:

SUMMER — Approved a summer school program which will open June 26 and close July 28, and a music program and camp during the same period. The music program, for sixth and seventh-graders, will include four weeks at Vallecito School and a week at a camp at Cazadero, Sonoma County.

EMPLOYEE — Hired Mary Hubel as a part-time teacher for two hours a day for $1,021 for the rest of this school year.

TEACHERS — Accepted 16 resignations from teachers. Included were retirement notices of Olive Menesini of Santa Margarita School after eight years with the district; Frances Hughes of Lucas Valley School after 10 years with the district, and Eleanor Lewis of Vallecito School after eight years. The other 13 resignations included 10 by teachers already on leave.

MEETING — Moved its regularly scheduled April 12 meeting to April 10 at 8 p.m. at the district office.

State Testing Program Suddenly Under Attack

By BRYCE W. ANDERSON

California's statewide testing program in elementary and high school has suddenly come in for massive criticism.

The bill to prohibit school districts from giving "any group standardized test, or any other test, which measures or attempts to measure the scholastic aptitude of a pupil" has been introduced in the Legislature by Assemblyman Willie L. Brown Jr., D-San Francisco, as AB 483.

Not so sweeping is AB 655 by Assemblyman Leroy F. Greene, D-Sacramento, who is chairman of the Assembly Education Committee. This would merely do away with the state reading test in second grade.

Wilson C. Riles, state superintendent of public instruction, on one hand recommended guidelines for state Board of Education adoption which call for evaluating teachers primarily on pupil accomplishment as shown on standardized tests, and on the other hand expressed doubts about the value of the state testing program.

WHY THE SUDDEN effort to discredit the tests?

Teacher unions leave little room for doubt that it is linked closely to teacher evaluation as mandated by the "Stull Bill" of 1971 — the law for which the state board last month adopted the guidelines recommended by Superintendent Riles.

United Teacher Associations of California, rival organization to the California Teachers Association which was set up by the United Teachers of Los Angeles (a CTA-California Federation of Teachers hybrid) makes the connection clear in an eight-page criticism of the evaluation law, which is calls "the accountability trap."

"Relating pupils' performance/capacity equation to teacher performance is impossible," delcares UTAC's analysis. Each local teacher association, it urges, "can make sure that it in no way consents to a policy which rates teachers according to pupil performance."

IT PROPOSES that each teacher sign a "professional delcartion" declaring: "We . . . will not submit to or participate in any program which would evaluate teachers on the basis of pupils' reaching objectives of predicted achievement."

It then proposes a "model evaluation policy" which starts out by saying: "It is expressly understood and agreed that adequate education cannot be provided for pupils by this school district due to inadequate funding . . . and that until conditions conductive to effective teaching and learning are available no teacher shall be penalized for the failure of pupils to make adequate progress."

In other words, no evaluation until there is "adequate funding." And since there never has been and presumably never will be "adequate funding" in the view of teacher unions, this means no evaluation.

California Teachers Association cannot take quite such a stand against evaluation itself, since it supported the idea. But CTA, too, has come out against using pupil test scores to rate teachers.

"The law does not mention standardized tests as a suitable instrument for evaluation," points out a CTA analysis. This is true because the law left it up to the state board and individual school districts to set up criteria.

IN SIMPLE: California teachers are among the highest paid in the nation, but California pupils in general are far down the list in test scores. This indicates a deficiency somewhere. So the answer — according to the teacher unions and their political supporters — is to throw out the tests.
